"On his way to Berlin to visit his grandmother Emil fell asleep and had his money stolen by the man who shared his compartment. Altho he came from the country Emil was not stupid, and he determined to get that money back. He followed the man, met the boy with the auto horn, who summoned his friends, and among them all they caught a very clever thief." Book rev. digest

"One suspects that May Massee was moved to make her admirable translation not alone for the sheer fun it was to introduce Emil and his friends to American boys and girls, but also out of her own realization both as a teacher and a librarian of the value of this fresh material as a human document in education. It should enlarge the world of many an American teacher of the fourth grade and beyond to know that the small boys of Berlin are so near of kin to the small boys of Buffalo and Chicago." A. C. Young Roman, son of a nobleman in medieval Poland, sacrificed a knightly career and his father's approval in order to attend the University of Krakow. The story of student life of the medieval university and of young Copernicus when he was arriving at his revolutionary belief that man's science of astronomy was wrong

"Those who love Poland cannot read this story without emotion. They will remember that, in spite of the tragedies of history, Krakow's intellectual past still lives. . . This story in which the adventure of learning is a real passion . . . will bring a new enthusiasm and a rich reward to more thoughtful readers and to all adults who have kept the fire of learning burning in their hearts. Expressive illustrations add to the value of this unique book." Sat. rev. of lit.

"The two children, David and Esther, lived 3,000 years ago, when Solomon ruled in Jerusalem and Hiram was King in Tyre. . . Although much information is given, the writer nevertheless contrives to put life into her characters and interest into her story. The historical and archaeological background is accurate. . .

The book is printed in unusually clear and attractive fashion and the end papers supply a map of the Mediterranean Sea showing the route to Tarshish." A. T. Eaton

 "While exploring in the wilderness of the Alleghenies, Daniel met the young surveyor George Washington. The boys became firm friends after traveling together and sharing hardships. Later young Washington helped the Boones to locate their new homestead in the Yadkin Valley, bringing the exploration to a successful finish. Swift action, strong characterization and lively style make this story very readable. The meeting between Boone and Washington is pure fiction, the author admits. But it could have happened." Insect allies. Harper 1938 45p illus $1.25 (5-8) 595.7

"Brief but interesting accounts are given of insects both friends and foes, with emphasis on the idea of conservation. In addition the book becomes one of a vocational nature in its suggestion that the field is not overcrowded and has something to offer to those who are interested in the study and control of natural resources. Reproductions of enlarged photographs are as informing as the text itself. No index, nor table of contents." Wis. bul.

Insect people. Harper 1937 63p illus o.p. 1946 (4-7) 595.7

Brief descriptions accompany enlarged photographs of common insects and spiders

"This is an excellent and provocative little book for boys and girls from 8 to 12, whose interest in the insect life they see around them is awakening. In the case of others these brief, well-written chapters, which give important facts without overloading the narrative with too many details and the striking photographs which illustrate them, are likely to stir an initial interest." "Recounts the deeds and misdeeds of three boys at an English public school.
Written in the latter part of the nineteenth century, probably as a reaction from the heavy moral tone of 'St. Winifred's' and 'Eric,' the point of view is refreshing. To older boys and girls, who possess a sense of humour, a catholic taste and a fairly wide background of reading, the book is a delight." Toronto

Raffy and the honkebeest; pictures by C.
E. Bracker. Messner 1940 [45]p illus $2 (2-4) E
"A large picture book with humor in both story and illustrations . . . of animals of the African veldt. The animals, trees, and plants are tinted with soft, lovely water colors. There is humor in the expressions on the animals' faces, and in the story of Raffy, a baby giraffe, who wanted to be the champion runner of the veldt. His race with a strange animal called the honkebeest is the exciting climax to the story." Library Journal

Paji; pictures by Harold Price. McGraw 1946 56p illus (Whittlesey house publications) $2 (4-6) Fic Paji, a Ceylonese boy, longs to make fine carvings of people, goddesses and ships, instead of the endless chain of elephants produced by his fellow villagers. He runs away to live in a lovely abandoned temple in the forest, accompanied only by Pushba, his gentle bullock, where he makes carved figures to his own liking "An appealing story greatly enhanced by unusual, fine illustrations in appropriate colors." Bkl.

* Big Red; illus. by Bob Kuhn. Holiday 1945 231p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

Story of an Irish setter, Big Red, which Danny was given to train. Together they roamed the wilderness, hunting, fishing, trapping, meeting Nature on her own terms. Together they conquered blizzards and varmints, and eventually tracked down Old Majesty, the great outlaw bear. In the process boy and dog grew to real maturity, and found a place for themselves

"A tale which paints the stern life of the Wintapi wilderness in strong, clear strokes." N.Y. Times

Forest patrol; illus. by Tony Palazzo. Holiday 1941 293p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"The life of a forest ranger, as seen through the eyes of a nineteen-year-old boy who is put in temporary charge of a district and finds his courage tested by hard work, poachers and forest fires." Hunting

"Good vocational fiction whose forest lore is intrinsic and unforced." Library journal

Rebel siege; illus. by C. B. Wilson. Holiday 1943 221p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

A "story of the wilderness fighting of the Revolution and of Kinross McKenzie of Carolina; who, with all the determination of a boy of 14, sets out to get back his rifle which a British soldier has taken from him. He saw a good deal of fighting and played an active part himself before . . . the British surrendered on King's Mountain." Kirkus

"Vivid recreation of period with its strong patriotism and mixed loyalties; good characterization; graphic description of desperate fighting." Library journal

Liliecrona's home; a novel; tr. from the Swedish by Anna Barwell. Dutton 1926 269p $2 (8-9) Fic

Published in Sweden in 1911; translated into English in 1914

This novel, while not written for young people, will be enjoyed by some older girls

"An engaging fairy-tale quality resides in many of Selma Lagerlöf's narratives, and it is delightfully congenial to 'Liliecrona's home.' Nowhere but in a fairy story would be found a mysteriously wicked stepmother, who is suspected of being an evil water-spirit; an incredibly beautiful and pitifully mistreated stepdaughter and a naive peasant child who is known as Little-Maid. . . Selma Lagerlöf gives the story from the viewpoint of the worshipful young Little-Maid, who has been sent by her mother to wait upon the pastor's daughter." N.Y. Times

"Dealing primarily with Alaska's resources, it discusses briefly the salmon industry, gold and other precious ores, forests, sea beasts, and land animals of which bears and reindeer are the most important. It tells, also, about the glaciers, northern lights, arts and crafts, and explains how airplanes are playing an important part in the development of Alaska. It is interestingly written in language that a child of eight can understand and has an age interest up to twelve. While this book should be supplemented by one giving the story in more detail, it is splendid as an introduction to Alaska. There are twenty full page lithographs in colors." Library journal

Prince Prigio; illus. by Robert Lawson. Little 1942 108p illus $1.75 (4-5) Fic

A fairy story, first published 1899, tells of a young prince of the kingdom of Pantoufia. His mother, who did not believe in fairies, would not invite them to the christening of the prince. They all came, however, and one fairy gave the boy the quality of being too clever. His struggle to overcome this curse is the theme of the story

The clever drawings in black and white fittingly illustrate this delightful tale

- Lost merry-go-round. Macmillan 1934 104p illus $2 (4-5) Fic
"One night Denny, Peter, Jimmie, Rosemary, and John went to look for the Merry-Go-Round which was lost in Flittermouse Wood when Grandfather was a boy. They found it and each mounted a wooden creature. Then away went the creatures, each in a different direction, and all night the children rode, having each his adventures." Horn book "Illustrations by the author in color and black and white interpret the story." N.Y. public lib.
- * Presents for Lupe. Macmillan 1940 [40]p illus $2 (2-4) Fic
In a "beautiful picture book we have the story of a red South American squirrel and the gifts brought to her to make her feel at home in a strange land. The toys, pottery, and glass are tiny glimpses of South America, perfect in design; and the warm colors in the drawings bring the exquisite little creature to . . . life." Library journal
- Puppies for keeps. Macmillan 1943 [40]p illus $2 (1-3) E
A "story of four baby Pekinese puppies who, when they were old enough to be sold, were all kept to be playmates for each other and pets for each member of the family." Hunting
"The skillful pencil of the artist has caught the exuberance of Pekinese puppies, and set it down in a series of action portraits with great charm and strength." N.Y. public lib.
- * Skittle-skattle monkey. Macmillan 1945 unp illus $1.75 (2-5) Fic
Story of a "monkey who manages to escape from his cage and wreck his master's house." Kirkus
"The illustrations, printed in a silvery gray are both beautiful and truthful. . . [The author has] created a new character in Jasmine. Bad as she is, the children will love her." Sat. rev. of lit.
- Snail who ran. Lippincott 1934 57p illus
$1.25 (3-4) Fic
"A beautiful little book written by Dorothy Lathrop in exquisite English. Whether Miss Lathrop wrote the book to carry the pictures or made her inimitable drawings of a fairy and certain little wood creatures to illustrate her story of midsummer night magic makes no difference. Both story and drawings are perfect." Boston Transcript
- * Who goes there? Macmillan 1935 [41]p illus $1.75 (2-4) E
"Two little children decide to give the animals a picnic. They carry apples, carrots, nuts, and grain to a little clearing in the woods, tie the larger offerings on a hemlock tree, and scatter the grain as an invitation. Then the snow comes. The animals accept the invitation with glee and in charming pictures and text is told the story of their picnic." Book rev. digest

Monkey ahoy! Illus. by Nedda Walker.
Random house 1943 233p illus $2 (5-8) Fic
"Courage and humor pervade this story of a lame boy who wanted to draw; Rosie, a little Capuchin monkey; and Cap'n John who liked to 'whittle.' Rosie furnishes the excitement of the story and she it was who inspired Randy to conquer his sensitiveness and fears." Hunting
- * Northern trail adventure. Random house 1944 217p $2 (6-8) Fic
"A young corporal of the Canadian Mounted Police holds the central place in the plot, but the book gives a vivid description of the rugged northwestern country rather than the story of the 'Mounties.' Element of mystery is brought into the story by a strange white boy who forms a partnership with the corporal." Library journal
"Adventure and mystery keep the story moving at a fast clip and the characters stand out as real people against the grim but curiously compelling setting." N.Y. Times

"Your Washington and mine' holds no end of things every boy and girl should know about the people, the buildings, the monuments, the historic places associated with the city. Not only has the information been selected with discrimination from authentic sources and made accessible by an excellent index, but also the natural interests of boys and girls in the early teens have been taken into very careful account in the manner of presentation. Here is no writing down, or what may be even worse, writing up." A. C. Moore in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Lattimore, Eleanor Frances, 1904-

- Clever cat; illus. by the author. Harcourt 1936 113p illus $1.50 (3-4) Fic

"Young readers will doubtless think Ulysses no more clever than their own loved pets, and therein lies Ulysses's charm, for he embodies those traits and habits, the playful moods, and moments of solemnity which each child knows are the ways of his own cat." N.Y. Times Simply told, with many illustrations in black and white

- First grade; illus. by the author. Harcourt 1944 147p illus $1.75 (3-4) E

"David is a six year old who lives in the country in South Carolina—and this is his first year in school. David wants a dog of his own, and a 'real' farm—but sometimes he gets tired of waiting for the things that are going to happen 'someday.'" Kirkus

"Realistic, happy experiences of first-grade children at home and school in a small community. Shows their attitude towards other children and ideas about activities as year progresses." Library Journal

- Junior, a colored boy of Charleston; written and illus. by E. F. Lattimore. Harcourt 1938 129p illus $2 (3-5) Fic

"Understanding story of Junior, a little colored boy of Charleston, whose efforts to earn money for his family sometimes ended in minor tragedies, but did have some success." Book rev. digest

"The story is delightful . . . in its sincerity and simplicity and its glimpses of characteristic features of Charleston life, the docks, vegetable carts, the flower women, shrimp men and the hucksters' contest." N.Y. libraries

- * Little Pear; the story of a little Chinese boy; written and illus. by E. F. Lattimore. Harcourt 1931 144p illus $2 (3-5) Fic

"Little Pear was a solemn-looking, but very mischievous five-year-old Chinese boy. After many mishaps, due to his craving for adventure, Little Pear fell into the river and had to be rescued by a man on a houseboat. The outcome was that Little Pear decided to be a good boy and never run away again." Book rev. digest

"Simple as it is, this little story has charm and a natural, childlike quality which will endear it to the six and seven-year-olds who are beginning to read by themselves. They will get from it also a picture of how Chinese children live, their toys, their food and their clothes." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

- * Little Pear and his friends; written and illus. by E. F. Lattimore. Harcourt 1934 178p illus $2 (3-5) Fic

"Another delightful story about the little Chinese boy whose curiosity and activity led him into much mischief in 'Little Pear'. In this, more scenes of village and family life are introduced, more games and festivals are described, without in any way hindering his activities or marring the story. Similar to the earlier book in format and illustrations." Bkl.

- * Peachblossom; written and illus. by E. F. Lattimore. Harcourt 1943 96p illus $2 (3-4) Fic

"Mrs. Lattimore writes of a Chinese child caught in the midst of the War. Fleeing with a friend of her family with whom she has lived since her parents were drowned in a flood, six year old Peachblossom finds refuge in a school for girls." Kirkus

"This is a gentle, but realistic, story of the quiet way of accepting the inevitable; which marks Chinese conduct under . . . war conditions." Horn book

- Questions of Lifu; a story of China; written and illus. by E. F. Lattimore. Harcourt 1942 104p illus $2 (3-5) Fic Lifu was a little Chinese boy whose father was a soldier. Of all the questions Lifu asked the one he most wanted answered was, When is my father coming home?

- Seven crowns; written and illus. by E. F. Lattimore. Harcourt 1933 189p illus o.p. 1946 (3-5) Fic

"On the sixth floor of a Copenhagen apartment house lived Birgit and her grandmother. On her birthday her grandmother gave her seven crowns to spend as she chose, and this is the story of what happened then." Book rev. digest

- Storm on the island; written and illus. by E. F. Lattimore. Harcourt 1942 181p illus $1.75 (4-5) Fic

- Story of Lee Ling; written and illus. by E. F. Lattimore. Harcourt 1940 114p illus $2 (3-5) Fic

"Lee Ling, a little Chinese girl, spends her days helping her mother, caring for the baby sister, and playing with boy cousins in the simple home of these Chinese working people. Her shyness with strangers, especially the Big Noses (white people), is overcome when danger threatens the baby." Library Journal

Tommy Tucker on a plantation; foreword by L. P. Latimer; illus. by L. J. Bridgman. Lothrop 1925 216p illus $1.50 (4-5) Fic

"Though obviously written to give information about colonial life in Virginia in a form for younger children, the account of seven-year-old Tommy's visit to his uncle's plantation has sufficient story interest to appeal to the small readers for whom it is intended and will doubtless give them a background for their later reading of books about the South. The book is in large clear type with attractive black and white drawings." Ontario library review

"The factual material about flying an airplane so simply presented, will satisfy the questions young boys and girls ask, and there is also enough of the dramatic in the story of pilot Small to appeal to the child's imagination." Wis. bul.

* Little farm. Oxford 1942 [48]p illus 75c (1-3) E

Mr Small turns farmer, and farm routine comes to life in pictures and simple text

* Little train. Oxford 1940 [48]p illus 75c (1-3) E

"Mr. Small is now an engineer and he has a little black train which he keeps oiled and polished. The description of the engine, the train's run, what happens at crossings etc. will delight little boys. This book has slightly more content than 'Little airplane'. . . The pictures are descriptive of the text showing all the interesting details." Ontario library review

Ocean-born Mary; story and pictures by Lois Lenski. Lippincott 1939 388p illus $2.25 (7-9) Fic

The scene of this story is laid in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in colonial days. Mary was a real child, born in mid-ocean, when her parents were voyaging to America in 1720

"Manners and customs in pre-Revolutionary New England make a fitting background for a story of fresh and genuine interest." Horn book

Phebe Fairchild; her book; story and pictures by Lois Lenski. Lippincott 1936 316p illus $2.50 (7-9) Fic

"Lois Lenski has created a very real character in her lively story of a Connecticut child of the 1830's. Out of a full assimilation of contemporary sources and an intimate knowledge and love of early American children's books Miss Lenski has made a book so complete in its integration of text, illustration and design as to satisfy the collector of children's books. . . The possibilities of an exceptional book have been fully realized in its production." N.Y. public lib.

* Puritan adventure; written and illus. by Lois Lenski. Lippincott 1944 223p illus $2 (5-8) Fic

A story of Puritans in a Massachusetts Bay Colony settlement and the exciting adventures of the Partridge family in particular. When "The Fearless" arrived from England bringing young Aunt Charity with a chestful of pretty clothes and a heartful of kindness and merriment, life was transformed for the Partridge family "A vividly told and distinguished book about early New England." - * Clear track ahead! Illus. by Earle Winslow. Macmillan 1932 84p illus $2 (4-6) 385

"There are chapters on the fast freight describing exactly what the engineer does, telling about the freight yard, the switch engine, sidings, stock cars and flat cars. We learn what are the duties of the brakeman, about block signals, about the roundhouse and the turntable. In the chapters on the passenger train the duties of conductors, railway postmen and station agents are explained. The author writes simply and clearly, with no trace of condescension. . . The illustrations are clear and satisfactory." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

- Diggers and builders; pictures by the author. Macmillan 1931 68p illus $1.75 (3-6) 620

"In chapters invitingly entitled 'Tony, the Steam Shovel Man,' 'Sam, the Cement Mixer,' 'Dan, the Derrick Man,' 'Joe, the Steel Worker,' and so on, the processes of excavating, laying foundations, hoisting steel girders and riveting, road-making and driving the trucks that bring building supplies, are all described. . . The black-and-white drawings are charming as well as clear enough almost to tell the story without words, while Tony, Dan, Sam and the others are shown in delightful silhouettes." N.Y. Times

- Fire Fighter; illus. by Earle Winslow. Macmillan 1939 65p illus $1.50 (4-5) 614.84

The author takes the reader on a tour of inspection of one of New York's fire boats. Just then an alarm comes in and off the reader goes with them to fight a fire

- Full steam ahead! six days on an ocean liner; pictures by Earle Winslow. Macmillan 1933 116p illus $2.25 (3-5) 387

"A book that will answer all the small boy's questions concerning the life on an ocean liner, the duties of various officers, the work in the engine room, how passengers and men are fed, and many other subjects of interest." Book rev. digest

- PT boat; Bob Reed wins his command at Melville; illus. with official photographs, U.S. navy and photographs taken at the Melville base by Carroll Van Ark. Macmillan 1943 171p illus $2 (6-9) 359

"The reader follows Bob from his arrival at the Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron Center at Melville, Rhode Island, through his training in seamanship and navigation, gunnery, engine maintenance, torpedoes and depth charges, PT boat fighting tactics until, his training completed, he gets orders to take command of his own PT boat in one of the MTB squadrons assigned to a combat area." Chisel-Tooth, the beaver; illus. by R. V. Shutts. Lippincott 1936 139p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"This complete and accurate account of beaver life and woods lore was first published in 1936 by The Penn Publishing Co." Huntting

"Encounters with wild beasts are successfully evaded by Chisel-Tooth and his mate, but when man appears to build his own dam tragedy strides. The children are lost, the mate is taken to the zoo and Chisel-Tooth is left alone. Sorry for his grief the engineers return his mate, and when a leak in the dam appears and flood threatens, it is the beaver who saves the day. Animals are not humanized." Library journal

* Wilderness champion; the story of a great hound; illus. by Paul Bransom. Lippincott 1944 195p illus $2 (5-8) Fic

"When Johnny lost a fine hound pup on the trail to his ranger's cabin in Alberta, Canada, he never abandoned hope of finding it. A year later rumors spread that a red hound was traveling in the company of the black leader of the wolves. An accident brought the hound back to his master and Reddy became a man's dog and a great hunter." Huntting

"Mr. Lippincott is a knowledgeable sportsman. His style is forthright, unpretentious, but he can make you remember the wilderness and the suspense of the chase, the savagery of titanic battles, almost as clearly as if you had seen them first hand." N.Y. Times

* Thomas Jefferson; illus. by Harrie Wood. Viking 1933 358p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"An excellent biography which gives a vivid picture of America during the last years of England's rule and the first decades of our democracy. Jefferson's relation to his country's history is presented with skill, as is the portrayal of his boyhood, college days, family life, and travels. The book has an attractive format." Bkl.

On the whole a more successful biography than the one by Nicolay, but not so apt to be popular with younger readers

Delecta Ann, the circuit rider's daughter; written and illus. by Myna Lockwood. Dutton 1941 335p illus $2.25 (5-8) Fic

"In the days when Iowa was frontier country the Rev. James Farrar answered the call to go there as a circuit rider. Delecta Ann envied her sister Elva, who was sent to Philadelphia to finish her education, for she dreaded the terrors and discomforts of frontier life. As she accompanied the family on their trip west, a chance meeting with Abraham Lincoln made her see things in a different light. . . Characterizations are good, as well as the presentation of pioneer life at the time of Lincoln and the Underground Railroad." Library Journal

(6) Doctor Dolittle's caravan; written and illus. by Hugh Lofting. Lippincott 1926 342p illus $2.50 (4-6) Fic

"Somewhat more sophisticated than earlier Dr Dolittle stories and embodying rather disconnected material. Nevertheless, the reader's affection for the doctor and his family will make a demand for this volume. The chief episode, of the Canary opera, featuring the prima donna Pippinella, Coloratura Contralto Canary, will charm owners of cage birds. It is good burlesque." Wis bul.

"Neferta, a princess of ancient Egypt, mistreated by the royal nurse, ran away from the palace and set out with a Nubian boy to the land of his people. Living like nomads they traveled by camel for a whole year sharing the hardships and injustices of the people over whom Neferta would one day rule." Bkl.

Lighting the torch; illus. by E. T. Wolcott. Longmans 1934 335p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"A story of sixteenth-century France that reflects the social unrest and discontent that fostered the Reformation. Young Stephen La Roue, a peasant lad separated from his family when they are driven from their home by soldiers of the king, makes his way to Basel where he is befriended by the scholar Erasmus and is apprenticed to the famous printer, Froben. His later search for his mother takes him to Paris and brings him into contact with some of the characters of 'Out of the flame.' An adventurous story with an interesting background of history and social customs." Bkl.

"The story of Jemmy, a lonely boy, and the shy little cat he found among the cypress trees. With infinite patience he made friends with her, fed and protected her and finally followed her until at last she brought the lost boy home." Hunting "High imaginative quality and good writing make this a distinguished book for children. As a story of a homeless boy who finds a home, it has strong emotional appeal, while, in its setting, a charcoal burner's hut in the mountains of the southwest, as well as in the character of old Shawn and his tales of leprechauns and little people, it has the atmosphere of folk literature." "The story of Eileen and Seamus, two Irish children, who, although level-headed in many matters, were well versed in fairy lore. And so their adventures, which often started prosaically enough, had a way of leading them to magic pools or involving them with leprechauns. The story combines real and imaginative adventure, and the illustrations, five in color, convey the Irish scene and atmosphere. For those children of eight to twelve who enjoy imaginative tales." Analyzed in Eastman

The stories have been re-arranged in the following order: How the youth Kilhuch came to King Arthur's court (including The story of Pull, prince of Dyved);

Mabinogion—Continued

How they sought the maid Olwen; How they performed the tasks set by the chief of the giants (including The story of Branwen); How the tusk and the sword were won (including The story of Lud and Levellis); How the great Salmon took them to Mabon (including The dream of Maxen the emperor); How King Arthur met the Jet Black Sorceress; Companions of Arthur: Knight Owen and the Lady of the Fountain; Peredur and the Castle of Wonders; Story of Geraint and the maiden Enid; Dream of Ronabbbway

A more attractive and readable version than the Lanier edition. Both are based on the Lady Charlotte Guest translation but the Colum version omits the stories of Math, of Manawyddan, and Taliesin found in the Lanier edition

"In order to make certain incidents clear and to get rid of passages that are obscure or repetitious in the stories as they have come down to us, I have worked over them, making certain condensations and certain rearrangements. But I have not attempted to make any far-reaching changes in the language that now seems so native to these Welsh stories, Lady Charlotte Guest's rhythmical English." Introduction

Knightly legends of Wales; or, The boy's Mabinogion; being the earliest Welsh tales of King Arthur in the famous Red book of Hergest; ed. for boys with an introduction by Sidney Lanier; illus. by Alfred Frederick. Scribner xx, 361p illus o.p. 1946 (6-8) 398.2

First published 1881. Analyzed in Eastman

Contents: Lady of the fountain; Kilhwch and Olwen; or, the Twrch Trwyth; Peredur the son of Evrawc; Dream of Rhonabwy; Pwyll, prince of Dyved; Story of Lludd and Llewelys; Origin of the owl; Branwen the daughter of Llyr; Manawyddan and the mice; Geraint the son of Erbin; Dream of Maxen Wledig; Taliesin

"Weird Welsh tales, full of magic and mystery, of fierce encounters and daring exploits. Eleven of the stories are taken from the famous 'Red book of Hergest,' a 14th century manuscript, and five of them relate adventures of King Arthur's knights. Includes also the romance of Taliesin who was probably a real sixth century bard and a contemporary of Arthur. Companion to the 'Boy's King Arthur.'" Pittsburgh

Book of wayside fruits, by Margaret McKenny and E. F. Johnston. Macmillan 1945 78p illus $2.50 (6-9) 582.13

Describes berries of the wayside—some edible, others ornamental. A full page picture in color showing both the fruit and flower of each bush or vine faces a page of descriptive text which gives its habitat and characteristics

* Book of wild flowers, by Margaret McKenny and E. F. Johnston. Macmillan 1939 80p illus $2.50 (4-8) 582.13

"A charming book . . . presenting 33 of the more familiar wild flowers common to the United States, east and west. The full-page lithographs, while sometimes failing to reproduce the actual color of the original flowers, are on the whole satisfactory. One page of brief nontechnical description accompanies each illustration. . . . Includes a list of botanical names; also drawings of seed pods. No index." Bkl.

Mrs Johnston has not only painted the flower pictures but also made the lithograph plates for the illustrations

Mushrooms of field and wood. Day 1929 xxiii, 193p illus $2 (6-8) 589.2

"An excellent text intended especially as a field handbook for young people. It gives an easily understood account of some of the larger, more conspicuous forms of mushrooms. There are three color plates and numerous illustrations in black and white from drawings and fine photographs. The descriptions are exact and simply expressed. There are indexes of common and scientific names. The book has been sponsored by the Coordinating council on nature activities, American museum of natural history, New York." Bkl.

boy. 'Kah-da,' though fictional in form, is really fact, for every incident is founded on personal experience and personal knowledge. . . 'Kah-da' is not to be read for story interest; in fact, it is really not a story at all. Nor is it to be read for its literary style, which is clumsy in places and never approaches creative writing. But its absolute authenticity and its meticulous attention to the smallest details of Eskimo life make it valuable reading for any one at all interested in the subject. . . A supplement to "Realms of gold." An annotated catalog of what the authors consider the best children's books published 1929-1935. After a chapter on Notable picture books the book is divided into two parts: Books for children, and Books for boys and girls (from eight years). An index to authors, titles and illustrators is included

"It is a volume worth waiting for. We find in it the same enthusiasm, the same rich evidence of wide reading that distinguished the earlier book, making it an indispensable guide to the choice of good reading for boys and girls. . . In this fine survey of a period is a treasure house of delightful illustrations, of information and refreshment for book lovers, young and old." Horn book

3-78 A collection of the stories of some of the real and of the legendary characters who have become the national heroes of American folklore

Contents: John Darling; Gift of Saint Nicholas; Captain Kidd; Joe Magarac; Ghost of Dark hollow run; King Coal; Ichabod Paddock; Stormalong; Ole Massa and his chillun; Mule humans; Blackbeard; John Henry; Tony Beaver; Johnny Appleseed; Mike Fink; Dan'l Boone; Davy Crockett; Big bear of Arkansas; Pirate Jean Lafitte; Feboled Feboldson; Kemp Morgan; White mustang; Golden cities of Cibola; Pecos Bill; Pecos Bill and his bouncing bride; How Paul Bonjean became Paul Bunyan; Ol' Paul's camp on the big Onion river; How Ol' Paul changed the map of America; Glossary

"This is the first comprehensive collection of these tales for younger children, who appreciate a good whopper as well as elders. . . They have been retold with the first requirement of such tales, a hearty enjoyment of their absurdities and extravagances, which Robert McCloskey seems to have shared in making his strong, clear-lined illustrations." Malory, Sir Thomas, 15th cent.

* Boy's King Arthur; being Sir Thomas

3-78 Malory's History of King Arthur and his knights of the Round Table; ed. for boys by Sidney Lanier; illus. by N. C. Wyeth. Scribner 1917 321p illus (Scribner illustrated classics) $1.75, school ed $1 (6-9) 398.2

Lanier's version follows Malory's "Morte d'Arthur" (first published by Caxton late in the fifteenth century) more closely than any other edition does. He says in his Introduction, "every word in this book, except those which occur in brackets, is Malory's, unchanged except that the spelling is modernized. . . I have also changed the division into books, from Caxton's wholly unreasonable arrangement of twenty-one to six, each mainly occupied with adventures turning upon the hero or event which names it."

"In this edition of Mr. Lanier's classic Boy's King Arthur, omission has been made of some minor passages and introductory matter—all the greater tales, those of Arthur, Launcelot, Tristram, Gareth, Galahad, Percival, and the Holy Grail, being retained." Publisher

A very attractive edition, with the good type and wide margins, which appeal to children

"Designed for the use of teachers and students engaged in publishing school materials of various kinds in an ordinary class situation. . . . It may also be useful to an English department or class wishing to publish materials resulting from a writing project." Preface

Mann, Martha

Nathan Hale, patriot; illus. by V. J. Dowling. Dodd 1944 343p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"Fictionized biography of a sincere patriot who gave his life in the cause of liberty. Although based on few known facts, this is a recreation of Nathan Hale's life and times—as boy, student, teacher, and officer in the Continental army. It is . . . [also] enlightening as to the beginnings of the Revolutionary war and the difficulties involved in creating and maintaining an army." Bkl.

"The author has succeeded in her desire to make the young hero real and living." Horn book

In the year 1812 Jeff Robbins, a Maine boy, shipped before the mast on a cargo schooner bound for Cuba. His ship was overhauled by a British frigate and Jeff, with some of the other men, was impressed for service aboard the British vessel. He and a friend escaped to an uninhabited Caribbean island and what they found there and how they were rescued brings this tale of adventure on sea and land to its conclusion

"A rousing story of the year 1812." N.Y. public lib.

King of the hills; illus. by Lee Townsend. Harcourt 1933 250p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

"Young Breck Townsend, off for a holiday during the hunting season, had his plans all made to get a flash photograph of a wise old stag of the New Hampshire hills. But his plans crossed those of men intent on very different business, with the result that he and Sam McArdie, son of the game warden, shared an exciting adventure before the picture of old Scarback was secured. A well told story for older boys." Bkl.

Miller, Elizabeth Cleveland, 1889-1936

Children of the mountain eagle; illus. by Maud & Miska Petersham. Doubleday 1927 328p illus o.p. 1946 (5-7) Fic

"Whether the author pictures little Bor and Marash herding goats or crossing a river on a goat skin raft or visiting the Skodra bazaar or listening to folk-tales or proving their courage in various ways, the primitive life and customs of the Albanian mountaineers and the mountains themselves are made exceedingly vivid and real." N.Y. libraries

Pran of Albania; illus. by Maud & Miska Petersham. Doubleday 1929 257p illus o.p. 1946 (7-9) Fic

"A fine story for older girls. The book opens with rumors of an attack by the Slavs and signal fires upon the mountains, and ends with peace between the hill tribes and the wedding of Pran and Nush. In between there is action, a slight mystery, and vivid description of primitive life and customs which Mrs. Miller makes so fascinating." St Louis

Young Trajan; illus. by Maud & Miska Petersham. Doubleday 1931 232p illus o.p. 1946 (7-9) Fic

"The simple love story of Frosina, a Roumanian peasant girl, and her strong handsome lover, Trajan, follows an account of Frosina's experiences in the Scuala Industrialia, where she learns to weave and embroider. Trajan leads his people in a struggle against the landowners and finally brings happiness to Frosina. A fine story of modern Roumania which gives many glimpses of peasant customs with their pagan ceremonials and superstitions." Cleveland

Dean and Don at the dairy; illus. by Will Climes. Houghton 1936 88p illus (Community life ser) $1.35, school ed 96c (2-3) E

A story-book similar to the author's "Jimmy the groceryman," and "To market we go." This volume tells of how two boys learn about the steps in dairying from the feeding of the cows to the delivery of bottled milk

Jimmy, the groceryman; illus. by Berta and Elmer Hader. Houghton 1934 88p illus (Community life ser) $1.35, text ed 96c (2-3) E

"The first book in a new series designed to give children in primary grades simple, but accurate, information concerning various important aspects of community life." Preface

A book of an educational type, which will be of value on the 'easy' shelf. . . It has entertaining as well as educational value and will fill a need in most libraries." E.L. Brock in Library Journal

To market we go; illus. by Florence and Margaret Hoopes. Houghton 1935 88p illus (Community life ser) $1.35, school ed 96c (2-3) E

"Material concerning a farmer's market in the north and an open-air market in the south is presented in a manner suitable for second and third grade readers. The part taken by the children, the happy phraseology which occasionally swings into a rime, and the gay illustrations are features which will stimulate interest." Bkl.

Story of old dolls; and how to make new ones; illus. by Corydon Bell. Doubleday 1940 234p illus $2.50 (6-9) 649.55
"This book combines the fascinating story of dolls through the ages with practical instructions about making them.
It begins with the dolls of the ancients and then describes dolls in Europe from the fifth to the twentieth century. The second part of the book is devoted to the art of doll making, with detailed instructions in the use of materials as varied as socks, bean bags, corn husks, acorns, papier maché, and plastic wood." Ontario

"The boy or the girl who has liked
'When we were very young' and 'Winnie-the-Pooh' will enjoy reading about Alexander Beetle who was mistaken for a match, the knight whose armor didn't squeak, and the old sailor who had so many things which he wanted to do.
There are other entertaining poems, also, and many pictures as delightful as the verses." Pittsburgh

Toad of Toad hall; a play from Kenneth Grahame's book. Scribner 1929 168p $1.50 (5-8) 822

"A free conversion of Kenneth Grahame's 'Wind in the Willows' into the form of a comedy with a strong infusion of Mr. Milne's own humor." Yale review

"Whether those whose admiration for
'The Wind in the Willows' is as ardent as Mr. Milne's own will be completely satisfied by his adaptation, we do not know; probably they will lament the loss of some fragment that they love; there is no satisfying fanatics. But, though they may grumble a little as a proof of loyalty to Kenneth Grahame, they will afterwards be moved by gratitude to Mr. Milne, who has told the story of Mr. Toad with an admirable discretion." Times (London) lit.

 Index to folk dances and singing games... A.L.A. 1936 202p $1 793.3
 An index to 112 books. The types of dances are grouped under the headings: classic, maypole, morris, Mother Goose, and tap "This index was originally made in 1926 as a guide to the collection of folk dances and singing games in the Music Department of the Minneapolis Public Library... Originally intended to cover only folk dances and singing games, the scope of the index has been enlarged to include classic dances, tap and clog, and some of the earlier square and contra dances. Modern social or ballroom steps have been omitted... Entries are made under title and nationality when such has been indicated." Preface

"The story is a true story of Nicholas, a strange Dutch boy, written for the ageless child living anywhere." A. C. Moore in Bookman

"It is the peculiar and unexpected gift of Miss Moore's book that it recaptures the old magic of the town and makes New York warm in one's heart, whether the heart happens to be young or old. . . . She tells the truth about the city with the clear-seeing eye of a child, relighting old beacons, discovering new magic in every elevated train, behind each shop window. . . . A rich handful of a book Miss Moore has written that will be equally precious to children who have cut their teeth on New York's skyline and to children afar to whom it is a longed-for fairyland, some day to rise above the horizon." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

motors; Dynamos; Electric railway; Miniature lighting; Miscellaneous electrical apparatus

A useful book on such phases of electricity as magnets, cells, telegraph, telephone, radio, motors, electric railroads, and experiments with electrical apparatus which boys can carry out themselves

Boys' book of science and construction; illus. and working drawings, rev ed Lothrop 1941 448p illus o.p. 1946 (6-9) 500

First published in 1921 with the title: Boys' home book of science and construction

The type of material and the organization are the same in the 1941 edition as in the 1921, but most of it has been rewritten and new illustrations used. Index

"A practical but simple account of many phases of science, with graphic descriptions of chemical and electrical experiments. Other subjects fully treated include mechanics, liquids, sound, heat, light, and meteorology." Right book for the right child

* First electrical book for boys. Scribner 1935 209p illus $2.50 (5-8) 537

"Information regarding the fundamentals of electricity and its practical use in the world today is conveyed in simple, non-technical language. The numerous illustrations and diagrams are especially helpful in making clear the operation of familiar electric appliances. Designed for boys of ten to fourteen, will be useful for older readers who need a simple text." Bkl.

* First radio book for boys; illus. by the author. Appleton-Century 1941 192p illus $2.50 (6-9) 621.384

The book describes "in detail the construction of several radio receivers which are as simple as it is possible to make them and get good results from their operation. All this apparatus for which plans and instructions are given has been built by twelve-year-old boys." Preface

Getting acquainted with chemistry; illus. by the author. Appleton-Century 1942 271 illus $2.50 (7-9) 540

Contents: Meaning of chemistry; Chemical research; Carbon; Ammonia; Chemist waves his wand at salt and produces a metal and a gas, both with peculiar properties; Chemistry on the farm; Cellulose; Carbohydrates; Water; Air and the things it is made of; New metals and old; Chemistry of some familiar things; Plastic; Experiments with household chemicals; Building materials of the molecule makers

"A popular account of chemistry explained in terms of articles and products in daily use, with special emphasis on chemistry's part in the development of synthetic materials. Not particularly well organized but practical and interesting. There are many illustrative experiments, diagrams, and photographs." Bkl.

Simple chemical experiments; illus. by the author. Appleton-Century 1941 269p illus $2.50 (7-9) 540

Contents: Your laboratory; Experiments with precipitates; Experiments with sulfur and some of its compounds; Experiments with oxygen and oxygen compounds; Experiments with gases and some of their compounds; Chemical tests; Safe "fire-works"; Experiments with a few organic compounds; Chemical tricks and magic; Miscellaneous experiments; Practical uses for your chemical knowledge; Chemicals you will need

Story of skyscrapers; illus. with photographs and drawings by the author. Rinehart 1934 218p illus o.p. 1946 (6-9) 725

The author "here describes the building of the Empire state building as typical of skyscraper construction. He tells how the site was chosen and the plans made, how the materials were produced, assembled, and tested, and finally how the workers representing hundreds of trades, professions, and industries completed this tallest man-made structure in the world. Many drawings and photographs add interest to the book." Bkl.

* Things a boy can do with chemistry; illus. by the author. Appleton-Century 1940 288p illus $2.50 (9) 540

Partial contents: Tools of the chemist; Solutions and crystals; Chemical analysis; Nitrogen; Carbon dioxide; Growing plants without soil; Foods; Metals; Electrochemistry; Equipment you need for experimenting

"A clear and reliable text showing the relation of chemistry to the industrial world. Contains more than a hundred experiments." N.Y. public lib.

Things a boy can do with electricity. Scribner 1938 243p illus $2 (6-9) 621.3

Contents: Becoming acquainted with electricity; Curious mineral which leads to adventures with magnetism; Building and using electric batteries; Discovering things which electricity will do; Making electricity show its muscle; Fun with a spark coil; Electrochemistry, the partnership of electricity and chemistry; Exploring with microphones and telephone receivers; Electric "eyes"; Alternating currents; Things you should know about tools, wires, glass and other materials

"A basic book to put into the hands of boys who wish to perform electrical experiments. Clearly explained, the experiments are both safe and practical. Diagrams and drawings interpret the text." Right book for the right child

Things a boy can do with electrochemistry; illus. by the author. Appleton-Century 1940 198p illus $2 (8-9) 541.37

Contents: New tools for the chemist; Niagara, the first center of electrochemical industries; Some electrochemical processes and products; Some products of the electric furnace; Things you should know about electricity; Ions, traveling atoms, or groups of atoms; Electricity from chemicals; Interesting list of metals; Experiments with electrolysis; Storage cells; Electrolytic rectifier; Miscellaneous electrochemical experiments

"The writing is clear and stimulating, as it has been in the author's books on electricity. The last third of the book consists of experiments which have been carefully planned and explained. Boys who have experimented with either chemistry or electricity will welcome this book." Library journal

- Little Mother Goose; with numerous illus. in full color and black and white by J. W. Smith. Dodd 1918 176p illus $2 (1-3) E
 This is one of the most popular editions of Mother Goose for size, selection, and illustration. There are about 380 of the most familiar rhymes, 12 full page illustrations in color and numerous small ones in black and white Another edition is:
 Mother Goose. Jessie Willcox Smith Mother Goose; a careful and full selection of the rhymes, with numerous illus. in full color and black and white, by J. W. Smith. Dodd 1914 173p illus o.p. 1946 A large book better for the use of students than of children, containing not only the familiar rhymes but also about 400 others which do not appear in other American editions. Has twelve colored plates and five in black and white
- Mother Goose; a comprehensive collection of the rhymes made by W. R. Benét; arranged and illus. by Roger Duvoisin. Heritage 1943 112p illus $1.95 (1-3) E
 "Mother Goose, in the collection made by Mr. Benet and illustrated by Mr. Duvoisin, was first published by The Heritage Press in 1936 then reprinted in 1938, and reprinted again in 1940. This is a new edition, in a fresh format, for which Mr. Duvoisin has made an entirely new set of drawings." Recommended for libraries which have editions of the more familiar version of Mother Goose. Many illustrations in color
- Mother Goose; or, The old nursery rhymes; illus. in colour by Kate Greenaway. Warne 48p illus $1.25 (1-3) E
 "This tiny little book contains but a limited number of the rhymes but its charming illustrations have delighted many children. The artist, Kate Greenaway, has kept to her usual type of English children rather than adapting herself to the accepted Mother Goose style." Right book for the right child
 "Very dainty edition, with 48 pictures in color. Bound in picture boards." Pittsburgh

 First published in England in 1919
 "Comprehensive edition embracing hundreds of traditional rhymes from Newbery's time down. Probably as valuable historically as Lang's collection and more attractive to children. Almost a 'must have.'" Wis. bul.
- Nursery rhyme book; ed. by Andrew Lang; illus. by L. L. Brooke. Warne 1897 288p illus o.p. 1946 (2-4) E
 Analyzed in Eastman
 First published in 1897, this is an abridgement of J. O. Halliwell-Phillipps' "The nursery rhymes of England" (1842). One of the most complete collections for the use of children, with excellent black and white illustrations. There is a good preface about the origin and history of some of the more familiar of the nursery rhymes
 "A feast of pictures, Mother Goose verses, old tales, proverbs, lullabies, games and jingles." Pittsburgh
- Nursery rhymes; with drawings by L. L. Brooke. Warne unp illus o.p. 1946 (1-3) E
 "Includes many of the rhymes in the edition edited by Lang, but in a different arrangement. Profusely illustrated with lively black and white drawings and water colours." Toronto
- Old Mother Goose nursery rhyme book; illus. by Anne Anderson. Nelson 1925 143p illus $2.50 (1-3) E
 "Anne Anderson's delicate color illustrations to the beloved old Mother Goose rhymes add fresh attraction to a book that has never failed to charm the fancy of the young. This edition, with its handsome paper, clear print, and attractive black and white drawings supplementing its pictures in color, is one that any small child would prize." Saturday rev.

Contains about 180 rhymes, about 25 full page illustrations in color, many smaller ones in color and in black and white

Only true Mother Goose melodies; an exact reproduction of the text and illus. of the original ed. published and copyrighted in Boston in the year 1833 by Munroe & Francis; with introduction by E. E. Hale. Lothrop [1905] 103p illus $1 (1-3) E

Exact reproduction of the first Boston edition, 1833, with an introduction by Edward Everett Hale

A large picture-book with illustrations in bright colors, very popular with the children

Rhymes from Mother Goose; comp. by Charles Welsh. [rev ed] Heath 1930 168p illus 80c (1-3) E

Published in 1901 under the title "Book of nursery rhymes"

This new edition is attractive, with clear type and satisfactory black and white pictures, good for library duplication

"Mother Goose's melodies attractively illustrated and grouped in logical order." N.Y. city

"Nursery rhyme picture book" nos. 1 and 2 are bound together to form this volume. See note under Brooke, L. L. illus. Children's books

"This is the most desirable collection of nursery rhymes for little children. The generous size of the book, the attractive blue cover, and the large coloured plates of Mr Brooke's inimitable pictures, make it indispensable. Selections from it are also obtainable as 'Nursery rhyme picture books,' No. 1 and No. 2." Toronto

Mourt's relation

* Homes in the wilderness; a pilgrim's journal of Plymouth plantation in 1620; by William Bradford & others of the Mayflower company; illus. with drawings by M. W. Stewart. Scott, W. R. 1939 74p illus $2 (5-8) 974.4

"First published at London in 1622 as 'A Relation or Journal of the Proceedings of the Plantation settled at Plymouth in New England.' The book is commonly called 'Mourt's Relation' because the preface is signed G. Mourt., and no other indication of authorship is given." Editor's note

"An actual journal kept by William Bradford and other members of the Mayflower company of their first winter at Plymouth. This edition is based on 'Mourt's relation'; the language has been somewhat modernized yet the atmosphere and feeling remains that of the original King James English. Printed on gray paper with spirited line drawings interpolated in the text. Useful as source material and for supplementary reference. Contains a glossary of old words. Large type." Bkl.

Rama, the hero of India; Valmiki's "Ramayana" done into a short English version for boys and girls. Dutton 1930 219p illus $2.50 (7-9) 398.2

Analyzed in Eastman supplement

"In this story of the Ramayana, the great epic poem of India has been vividly and connectedly retold for young people. It will make its greatest appeal to the exceptional boy and girl and also to those adults who delight in Mr. Mukerji's poetic prose, for he has done a fine piece of work in retelling 'these doings of Rama.'" Munchausen

Adventures of Baron Munchausen; one hundred and sixty illus. by Gustave Doré. Pantheon bks. 1944 213p illus $3.75 (6-9) Fic

Highly exaggerated stories of travel and adventure written by a German and first published in England in 1785

"The Pantheon Books edition is a compromise based on both Buerger and Gautier. The stories not translated by Gautier, and therefore not illustrated by Doré, are omitted, thus reducing Buerger's 34 chapters to only 18. . . An excellent text, translated anonymously into a vigorous English, much superior to Raspe's version. But the most beautiful feature of this book is the excellent reproduction of the complete Doré illustrations. These stress the fantastic element of Munchausen's adventures, add many picturesque details and radiate a sense of humor much more delicate than does the text." Commonweal

Tales from the travels of Baron Munchausen; ed. with introduction and notes by E. E. Hale. . . with thirty-four illus. after Gustave Doré. Heath 1900 88p illus 68c (5-8) Fic

Munger, Martha Perrine

Book of puppets; stage scenery, puppets and plays by M. P. Munger; costumes and manipulation by A. L. Elder; foreword by Helenka Adamowska; with illus. by J. B. Van Rossum-Shiffer. Lothrop 1934 206p illus o.p. 1946 (4-6) 791.5

"This book on hand-manipulated puppets is written in simple language and is suitable for use by children or those working with children. The first part of the book contains practical instructions for building a stage, fashioning and manipulating puppets, and staging a play. The second part contains six plays with stage directions: The three pigs; Little black Sambo, The three bears, Little Red Riding Hood, It happened after all (based on 'Twas the night before Christmas) and Ali Baba and the forty thieves. Illustrated with drawings showing puppets, stage settings, and scenes for the plays." Book rev. digest

Beginner's guide to the stars. See note under Murphy. Beginner's star-book 523.8

Beginner's star-book; an easy guide to the stars and to the astronomical uses of the opera-glass, the field-glass and the telescope. . . by Kelvin McKready (pseud). 4th ed thoroughly rev by M. K. Murphy. Putnam 1937 154p illus $3.50 (8-9) 523.8

A third edition was published 1929. The changes in the 4th edition affect the main part of the book but little, but more revision has been made in the "Observer's catalogue" and in the tables and text of chapter 8. Bibliography: p148-51

A book meant for the adult general reader as an introduction to a knowledge of the stars and other heavenly bodies, with many charts of the sky, excellent photographs, and a useful chapter on the use of telescopes and other instruments

Another recommended book on the stars and where to find the individual ones is: Murphy, E. G. Beginner's guide to the stars; based on A Beginner's star book, by Kelvin McKready (pseud); arranged by M. K. Murphy. Putnam 1924 86p illus $1.25

First published 1916. For this revised edition the author has reassembled his biographies into groups with an introduction for each. The work is based on two numbers of the "National geographic magazine" which were devoted to the larger and smaller mammals of North America.

"This is a scientific work of a very unusual kind. It consists of a series of capital life studies of the most important big and small mammals of North America . . . with admirable colored pictures by Louis Agassiz Fuertes and track sketches by Ernest Thompson Seton, and some excellent photographs and sketches by other men." In this book, in words and pictures, will be found most of the terms needed in order to understand the important facts about planes, how they work and why they fly

"Throughout the book we have included many cross references that add up in the end to a brief summary of basic aviation knowledge." What this book can do for you

"The whole field of aerial development and practice is given in this informal dictionary. The supplement includes the identification of planes, maps and map projection and a chronology. Attractive diagrams and sketches throughout." N.Y. public lib.

Black fire; a story of Henri Christophe; illus. by Avery Johnson. Longmans 1940 275p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"Henri Christophe was born a Negro slave in the British West Indies in 1767. Although the author has supplemented the little that is known about his early life by an imaginary boyhood, first on the plantation where his father was slave, and later as galley assistant on the ship Midge, the latter half of the story, his part in the Haitian rebellion against France and his subsequent rise to power, is based on historical fact. His is a story which grips the imagination and here it is told with fire and colour." Ontario library review

Larger than the sky; a story of James cardinal Gibbons; illus. by Addison Burbank. Longmans 1945 216p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

Fictionized account of the life and times of James Gibbons, from priesthood to cardinal, emphasizing his valiant fight for racial and religious tolerance, for free education and for American labor

"A story biography of Cardinal Gibbons, written in a lively, vigorous vein. Though he was born in America, the story begins in Ireland, from where the large family moved to New Orleans. . . . In writing of the mature years of the cardinal the author brings out his devotion to the Union . . . his love of children, his warm human sympathies, his tolerance and championship of the laboring man." "An American youth's adventures in the Lafayette Flying Corps during the first World War. The two authors of this tale lived through many of the experiences described and they write with authenticity and often fine and moving sympathy of the life, fortunes and misfortunes of men in training, in action or in prison camps." N.Y. libraries

Hurricane. Little 1936 257p $2.50 (7-9) Fic

"This moving drama disclosed on a distant Pacific atoll opens serenely, gathers force during the governor's search for an escaped native convict more sinned against than sinning and reaches an agonizing climax in the fury of a hurricane which devastates the island. The convincing tale depicts the life of the native and the several white inhabitants, and both the beauty and desolation of their surroundings." N.Y. libraries

Story of a small boy and his dog Pogo. John learns about salmon fishing while on his uncle's fishing boat in Puget Sound. Simple text and many pictures

Pogo's house; the story of lumber. Holt 1941 42p illus $1.25 (1-4) E

"Pogo was John's dog and when John wanted to build Pogo a house of his own, he set about it by going to the carpenter for lumber. . . . From that point on he learned, step by step, the story of lumber—the cutting down of trees, the work in the lumber camp, in the saw mill, etc. Told in brief text and pictures." Kirkus

Pogo's mining trip; a story of gold. Holt 1945 40p illus $1.25 (2-4) E

A gold mine is the subject of the latest in this series which serve as information books and practice readers

"The illustrations, and particularly the end papers, give an excellent idea of mine lay out and equipment." Ontario library review

* Pogo's sky ride; a story of airplanes. Holt 1943 44p illus $1.25 (2-4) E

John and his little dog Pogo, were allowed to visit a great airplane plant and to take a ride in a plane

"This is an instructive book describing the manufacture of airplanes at every stage of construction, and how they operate. Wash drawings in black and white are as clear and easy to follow as the text. The end papers show details and uses of all parts of a plane." Ontario library review

Pogo's train ride; a story of freight trains. Holt 1944 40p illus $1.25 (2-4) E

- Return of Silver Chief, by Jack O'Brien; illus. by Kurt Wiese. Winston 1943 211p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

"When Frank Blaine asked Jim Thorne of the Royal Canadian mounted police to care for his motherless little girl while he returned to his claim, Jim could not refuse. His acceptance of the trust became a part of the web which led to . . . the capture of two escaped Nazi prisoners and a happy future for Patricia Blaine." Hunting

- * Silver Chief, dog of the north; illus. by Kurt Wiese. Winston 1933 218p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

"A story that will appeal to boys and girls because of its fine picture of a dog and its account of simple, matter-of-fact heroism. Kurt Wiese's excellent drawings help the text to suggest the atmosphere of the snowy Northwest country." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

J. S. O'Brien's "Silver Chief to the rescue; illus. by Kurt Wiese" (Winston 1937 235p illus $2) is another story about Silver Chief in which the mystery of stolen furs is solved by Silver Chief and his master, Jim Thorne

* Early American; the story of Paul Revere; illus. by H. S. Gillette. Scribner 1940 140p illus $1.50 (5-7) 92

"A very readable and dramatic account of the life of Paul Revere by an author who has had much experience with radio programs. This experience is evident in the way the material is presented and makes the book appealing to children. The style is that of fiction but the book will classify as biography. Large type, thirteen illustrations . . . make a most attractive volume." Library journal

Friend of animals; the story of Henry Bergh; illus. by Paul Brown. Scribner 1942 125p illus $1.60 (5-7) 92

"A short, simple biography of the New York philanthropist who founded two great humane movements—animal and child welfare. This book should have a double appeal for young readers—as the record of a man's courage against ridicule and opposition and as the story of the American society for the prevention of cruelty to animals." House between; a story of the 1850's; with illus. by Margaret Platt. Viking 1943 343p illus $2 (6-8) Fic
"The Dollard house (in Newburyport, Massachusetts) has been dreary and empty for a long while but when Mrs. Cap'n moves in and finally her brother-in-law, Captain Joel Tatum, things begin to hum. The young group must have had a lot of fun, what with the French Troupe, the excitement on the Fourth, Pedro the parrot and Huckleberry Dumpling, the pup." Kirkus

Lost locket; the Newburyport of 1830; with illus. by Margaret Platt. Viking 1940 317p illus $2 (6-8) Fic
"While the time is 1830 when people rode in sleighs instead of automobiles and portraits were cut in silhouette, events seemed as exciting as they do today and wits were as sparkling and full of fun. There is a real mystery, too, which kept the girls and boys as absorbed as their elders and gave subject for lively conversation and spicy comment." Horn book

Penelope Ellen and her friends; three little girls of 1840; illus. by Margaret Platt. Viking 1936 300p illus $2 (6-8) Fic
"Penelope Ellen Purvis, Penny for short, was left behind while her father and mother sailed from Newburyport harbor for a year's voyage. It was an interesting year with deep snows, a ride on the railroad, the presidential procession and the wedding of Aunt Lucy and Dr. Cherry, which father and mother were able to attend. A refreshing story, which is a faithful portrayal of the life of the times." Wis. bul.

* Runaway apprentice; the story of Jeffrey, Susan, Tris, and Tibby in the year 1800; drawings by Margaret Platt. Viking 1939 280p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

Newburyport in 1800 when the Barbary pirates were making trouble for its ships. Into this situation comes Jeffrey, apprenticed to a saddler who does not like boys

"There is history, fun and a romance in this fine piece of Americana." Christian science monitor

Tabitha Mary, a little girl of 1810; illus. by Margaret Platt. Viking 1933 244p illus o.p. 1946 (6-8) Fic

"Tabitha Mary's unhappy life was changed perceptibly when a kindly lawyer took the orphaned girl to his own home, instead of leaving her to be a drudge on a relative's bare New England farm. The time is the early years of the nineteenth century." Book rev. digest

* Vinny Applegay; her first year in New York; a story of the 1870's. Viking 1937 293p illus $2 (5-8) Fic

"In the 1870's Vinny went to live with a bachelor uncle in New York where she enjoyed being 'lady of the house,' and exploring the city." Cleveland

Year without a summer; a story of 1816; with illus. by Margaret Platt. Viking 1945 288p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

An unnatural summer of snow and frost, caused by sunspots, in 1816, serves as a background for this New England story, in which an English girl arrives to claim the richest part of the town as her inheritance and joins in the sports, chores and social affairs of the young people

"Pleasant story for girls with good characterization, wholesome atmosphere, authentic background and written with much humor." Library journal

First published in 1926. This edition has several minor revisions and a new chapter addressed to teachers

A book on nature study for younger children on sugars, animals, seeds, insects, fish, cotton, flax, spiders, birds, and trees. Large print, many pictures

Hexapod stories; illus. by R. J. Sim. Cadmus 167p illus (Little gateway to science) 96c to schools only (3-6) 595.7

A reprint of a book first published 1920 by Little

"Stories of insect life for very little children. Each story carries a butterfly, bee, cricket, firefly or other subject through a year's cycle of changes in seasons, making a complete life story." Cleveland

* Holiday hill; illus. by W. S. Bronson. Macmillan 1931 135p illus $2 (4-6) 502

Information about cocks, squirrels, beetles, snakes, caterpillars, elm trees, primroses, and rabbits for younger children. Good illustrations

"A companion book to 'Holiday pond' and 'Holiday meadow.' Equally entertaining and satisfying for first readings in nature study." Wis. bul.

* Holiday meadow; decorations by W. S. Bronson. Macmillan 1930 165p illus $2 (4-6) 502

Ten stories about a meadow and what two children learned there about meadow-larks, seeds, woodchucks, insects, hay, moles, caterpillars, moths, snow bunnings, and spiders. Many illustrations in black and white

* Holiday pond; illus. by W. S. Bronson. Macmillan 1929 147p illus $2 (4-6) 502

"Ten stories about the inhabitants of, or visitors to, Holiday Pond—frogs, fish, turtles, insects, birds, animals, and plants. They are simply told and entertaining." Bkl.

* Desert neighbors; drawings by C. L. Fenton. Macmillan 1937 170p illus $1.75 (4-6) 591.5

"In this book the reader meets the creatures of desert country . . . one by one, follows them about for what amounts to the length of time a child's interest would keep him doing it, tells what they do, and explains why. . . These studies of wild life for children have a child's point of view and a scientist's spirit, which is why they hold their own among so many nature books for the young." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"The pictures, with a fine clarity and quiet beauty, suggest the atmosphere of the desert and reinforce the information given by the text." N.Y. Times

* Forest neighbors; drawings by C. L. Fenton. Macmillan 1938 198p illus $1.75 (4-6) 591.5

"A simple but well presented . . . collection of stories of the habits of such well-known inhabitants of the North woods as chipmunks, beavers, moose deer, loons, horned owls, and small birds like the grosbeaks, vireos, and finches and of the trees and shrubs from which they obtain food." Baldwin

"Similar in intent to 'Desert neighbors' and illustrated by line drawings and photographic reproductions. . . Indexed." Bkl.

"A first book on marine biology, suitable for use with children from eight years of age. There are simple accounts of such forms of shore life as the sea anemone, starfish, sea urchin, squid, sea horse, and various shore birds. The chapter on the changing shore gives a rudimentary idea of geologic forces at work." Book rev. digest

"Photographs and beautifully drawn studies of the subjects supplement the text in giving a singularly clear conception of these interesting forms of life." N.Y. Times

"Accurate information about birds, animals, fish, even timber line trees, which one might find in the high mountains, interwoven into interesting narrative. A genuine addition to a nature library. Illustrations are actual photographs or drawings by Dr. Fenton." Wis. bul.

* Prairie neighbors; drawings by C. L. Fenton. Macmillan 1940 161p illus $1.75 (4-6) 591.5

"In the style of the other 'Neighbor Books,' the author presents stories of the bobolink, the cotton-tail rabbit, gopher, prairie chicken, and other creatures common to the prairie region. Accurate information interestingly presented." Library journal

"Illustrated by line drawings and photographic reproductions. . . Many references to material in other books are listed on page 157. Indexed. Large type." Bkl.

"A thoroughly entertaining book with a unique flavor. It is an account of the voyage of the Melfort family (Mamma and ten children) from Australia to England in 1855, a six months' passage under sail. The captain half starved them for his own profit, and there were storms, mutiny, and plenty of escapades on the part of the young Melforts themselves. The story is based on family records, undoubtedly colored by the author, who has a sense of humor and a gift of characterization all her own." New Yorker

A book built around United States history, biography and legend. Twenty-six full page illustrations in color face twenty-six stories of the American spirit
"The text is brief and serious, but appropriate for this kind of book. The illustrations, colorful and dramatic, are, however, the main interest of the book."

"The artists, Maud and Miska Peter-sham, who recently spent several months in Palestine, have interpreted through pictures the spirit of the Holy Land which was the background of the childhood of Jesus. With the exception of the prophecy from the book of Isaiah, the text is from the gospels of Matthew and Luke. A picture book of unusual beauty." Cleveland

First published 1929 by Doubleday
"Miki is a little boy who goes to Hungary and travels about with Sari, the green goose, and Matyi, the shepherd's dog with the silver curls. They listen to the shepherd's folk tales, dance with the gypsies and ride on the merry-go-round in Budapest. A story bringing out many Hungarian customs and characteristics, which children from three to seven will enjoy. The bright-colored illustrations by the author-artists are in the merry spirit of the text." Cleveland

Pierce, Beatrice

- * It's more fun when you know the rules: etiquette problems for girls; illus. by Marguerite De Angeli. Rinehart 1935 271p front $1.75 (6-8) 395
A "book of etiquette designed for girls, although necessarily some suggestions for boys are included. For this reason it cannot replace Clark and Quigley's 'Etiquette Junior.' The chapters, chatty and friendly in style, appeared serially in the 'American Girl' magazine. They include every etiquette problem a girl may meet—manners at home and school, correct clothes for traveling, appropriate menus for entertaining, etc. This is a very readable and informative contribution in a field not too well supplied." Adventure north; illus. by S. J. Voorhies.
Carrick 1940 268p illus o.p. 1946 (7-9)
Fic

"Experiences related by the author in her 'Wilderness wife' furnish the background for an entertaining story of a selfreliant family who built a log cabin home in the Canadian wilds of northern Ontario where the father proposed to trap animals and establish a fur farm. . . . An excellent picture of outdoor life in the woods." Bkl.

Windigo. Harcourt 1945 223p $2 (6-8)
Fic

Sequel to "Farther north"

Continues the story of the Jackman family and their fox farm in the North woods. Ann comes home from school for the Christmas holidays, bringing a school friend, and is joined by Jerry Sloane. A story that their Ojibwa friend Wen-dahban has turned into a windigo frightens the other Indians, and sends the young people out to solve the mystery." Book
rev. digest

"The mild mystery is interesting but much more fascinating is the description of Indian customs and superstitions and the authentic picture of life in a Canadian fur trading post." Library journal

"The selected lives have been freely retold. The discursive reflections, in which Plutarch frequently indulges, have been generally omitted; so also have many proper names not necessary to the full understanding of the stories. But, while much has been omitted, the writer has not presumed to add matter, other than seemed necessary to explain the importance or bearing of events, or to make the narrative clear to young readers."

illus $1.75 (5-7) Fic

This story of a boy and his pet calf is set in present day Chile. Sandalio, a country boy, had never left his village home. But when it seemed necessary to sell Rosa, the cow, and with her San-dalio's own calf, he thought up a plan which took him to the bustling city of Valparaiso

Sky ride; illus. by Ruth Wood; jacket,

Perry Fuller. Scribner 1944 151p illus
$1.75 (4-6) Fic

"The story of two air-minded boys, their adventures at a nearby flying field, and how . . . they learned to fly. The relationships between the boys and their mother and small, rather spoiled sister makes it, also, a . . . family story." Hunt-ting

"The boys are alive; you see in them the intense determination of their time of life and the humor they don't see in themselves. Meanwhile a ten-year-old reader—yonger if a plane fancier—gets direct information as if on the spot."

"Agenor, thirteen-year-old assistant to the keeper of Hannibal's elephants, tells the story of Hannibal's campaign across the Alps and down into Italy. Before the long trek started there was a spirited debate whether or not the elephants should accompany the expedition. What was the reason for General Gisbo's hatred of the old elephant, Anak? This recurrent question supplies the mystery of this . . . historical . . . tale." Hunting

Noah Webster, father of the dictionary; illus. by I. B. Hazelton. Messner 1942 229p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"The life of Noah Webster, a typical American farm boy who made good under difficulties, covers the period in American history when the young republic was just getting on its feet. His contribution and influence to its development was unique and of lasting value." Hunting

"To the English teacher and librarian giving instruction in the use of reference books it will be a treasure. In addition it is well written and not without touches of humor." Wis. bul.

* River-boy; the story of Mark Twain; illus. by W. C. Nims. Messner 1940 247p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"The life of America's most picturesque author is here made to read almost like the plot of one of his own books. . . The part played by the Mississippi River and the river boats and men both in shaping the man and in providing material for the writer is clearly pictured. The emphasis is placed on his earlier life as most picturesque and full of interest to boys and girls but not to the exclusion of his later days. This does not replace the Paine biography but in its selection of only the main details has a younger, and in its format, a more attractive appeal." Ontario library review

Treasure hunter; the story of Robert Louis Stevenson; pictures by Hardie Gramatky. Messner 1939 206p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

The life of Stevenson for young people. The author has culled her material from many sources: the baby-book which his mother kept during the first six years of his life; the diary of his nurse; his own writings; the Stevenson Museum in Edinburgh. She has woven them into a book in which those who know his writings will trace the origins of his work

"Not only a vivid portrayal, but something gay in the telling recreates a lovable personality, without sentimentality, but with the charm always associated with him. . . The bibliography will be used not only in encouraging the reader to go back to reread the author's works, but also to rediscover him." Wis. bul.

Ugly duckling; Hans Christian Andersen; illus. by Malthe Hasselriis. McBride 1932 213p illus o.p. 1946 (6-8) 92

"A fine biography for young readers, simple and gay, as any story about Andersen should be, for the gaiety of his imagination was never subject to the brutality of circumstance. Any child old enough to read and enjoy Andersen's fairy tales can read and enjoy this book, for it is definitely keyed to the understanding of young children. The book is sympathetically illustrated." Sat. rev. of lit.

Let's look at advertising. Harcourt 1940 249p illus $2 (7-9) 659.1

Partial contents: 57 varieties of advertising; Credit side of advertising; Government and advertising; Department store advertising; Advertising agency; Planning a campaign; Advertising by mail; Advertising and the consumer

The authors "outline the business as a whole in its many ramifications, tell of the harmful as well as the beneficial aspects, and suggest the great power of people or corporations of wealth to influence the opinions of the masses for good or ill. The theories behind advertising, and the concrete application of these theories in the different types of advertising are shown and analyzed. . . The general effect of the book is not destructive. It is designed to make the reader demand honest advertising in good taste. There is some vocational value as well." Library journal

"Just enough information is included in the story to be easily absorbed by a child so that he will not be confused by too many facts. This is one of an excellent series of children's books, a series that instructs as well as entertains." Boston Transcript

Analyzed in Eastman supplement
Contents: Grandfather Juan and Little Paco; Talking bird; Eagle warrior; Bird of love; Jump-over-the-wall bird; Green serpents; Queen and the giant; Moon princess; Eagle and the snake; Prince Brave Heart; Feathered serpent

"Aztec fairy tales, including the legends of the Feathered serpent, told by Grandfather Juan to his grandson Paco. Each story is introduced naturally into some episode of modern life, thus giving an atmosphere of modern Mexican life." Book rev. digest

"Miss Purnell has lived in Mexico for many years and Mr. Weatherwax is a student of Mexican folklore; their love for the blue skies and vivid colors of the country and their understanding of the Mexican people have found their way into these pages and given a certain sparkle and freshness to the book. The illustrations are excellent." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

"These authors have the gift of making a historical period alive and interesting. The information they give the reader is just what one would like to obtain from a returning traveler who had managed in some way to transport himself back to Greece of the fifth and sixth centuries. Temples and houses, life inside the houses, clothing, furniture, schools, music, dancing and games and many other topics are described and illustrated with excellent line drawings." A. T. v4 "The fourth and last volume shows how everyday man has fed, clothed, amused, and improved himself between the years of 1851 and 1934. It traces the advent of multiplication of machines in industry and shows their effect upon social and economic life. Throughout the four volumes the author's presentation of the subject is such as should help build up a tolerant viewpoint as well as a sense of individual responsibility. Excellent illustrations." Map on lining-papers

- Old Peter's Russian tales; with illus., cover design, and decorations by Dmitri Mitrokhin. Nelson 1917 334p illus o.p. 1946 (4-6) 398

Contents: Hut in the forest; Tale of the silver saucer and the transparent apple; Sadko; Frost; Fool of the world and the flying ship; Baba Yaga; Cat who became head-forester; Spring in the forest; Little daughter of the snow; Prince Ivan, the witch baby, and the little sister of the sun; Stolen turnips, the magic tablecloth, the sneezing goat, and the wooden whistle; Little Master Misery; Chapter of fish; Golden fish; Who lived in the skull; Alenoushka and her brother; Fire-bird, the horse of power, and the Princess Vasilissa; Hunter and his wife; Three men of power— evening, midnight, and sunrise; Salt; Christening in the village

"Old Peter, the grandfather, tells the tales to Vanya and Maroosia. The stories have many counterparts in other folklore and are well told with humorous touches. They differ enough from familiar versions to give novelty to old plots and they have plots which are new to our children." Bkl.

- Peter Duck; illus. mainly by themselves with additions by Helene Carter. Lippincott 1933 427p illus $2.50 (7-8) Fic

"Every reader of 'Swallows and Amazons' and 'Swallowdale' will welcome this new book of the further adventures of the Walker children and their friends. It tells of how they sailed in a schooner with Captain Flint and an old seaman, Peter Duck; of their search for a buried treasure and their thrilling experiences with pirates, an earthquake, a landslide, a hurricane and waterspout, and, at last, a happy passage home." Ontario library review

- The Picts and the martyrs; or, Not welcome at all. Macmillan 1943 308p illus $2.50 (6-8) Fic

In this story, Dorothea and Dick Callum have come to visit the Blacketts, Mrs Blackett is away but the children have promised to lead blameless lives until she returns. Where the Swallow and Amazons are, however, adventure is sure to break in "The old magic of spontaneous fun, true adventure, boats and children is at work again in this book." N.Y. public lib.

are now using an exclusive system of air mail, and their pigeons Homer, Sappho and Sophocles wing their mysterious way through the tale. As interesting and entertaining as the author's former books." Ontario library review

Secret water. Macmillan 1940 363p illus $2 (7-8) Fic

"The Swallows and Amazons of the author's previous stories turn explorer in a new summer holiday adventure. Left by the grownups on an island alone, all suppose, except for a farmer, the young people set up camp and proceed to map the uninhabited territory. But strange tracks in the mud and the sudden appearance of a mysterious totem before their tents leads them to discover the tribe of savages, the Eels, who claim this land as their own. Great excitement follows as explorers and savages match wits." Library Journal

Arthur Ransome's "Big six" (Macmillan 1941 353p illus $2) continues the adventures of the Swallows and Amazons in a combination sailing and mystery story

* Swallowdale; illus. by Helene Carter. Lippincott 1932 393p illus $2.50 (7-8) Fic

"Continues the adventures of the Swallows and the Amazons. Captain John, Mate Susan, Able Seaman Titty, and Roger, the ship's boy, spend a second happy summer camping on Wild Cat Island, and again meet their friends Captain Nancy and Mate Peggy, of the good ship Amazon." Book rev. digest

"The story is crowded with useful hints on sailing and camping; is exciting but not sensational, funny but never ludicrous; in fact it is a perfect book for children of all ages, and better reading for the rest of us than are most novels. Above all, the children talk as children do talk, and the plot is excellent." Spectator

* Swallows and the Amazons; illus. by Helene Carter. Lippincott 1931 343p illus $2.50 (7-8) Fic

"The account of a busy and adventurous vacation during which two sets of lively English children camped on a small island, and explored or sailed around it. The Swallows were the four Walkers, who had an understandingly nautical mother, and the Amazons were Peggy and Nancy, whose uncle lived with his parrot in a house boat, and was suspected of being a pirate." Book rev. digest

"One of the great charms of the book is its extreme reasonableness. Mr. Ransome is as thoughtful of detail as Defoe; he tells how tents were made, how pike (the shark of those waters) were scaled, how meals were cooked, and leading lights set above the tiny harbour." Spectator

"In 'Bran the Bronze-Smith' the author combines sound scholarship and historic imagination with thorough understanding of boy nature. All the characters have reality and the descriptions of hair-breadth escapes, of wrestling and riding, of raids and ambushes will be absorbing to boys and girls from 12 to 15. The illustrations, based on drawings made from objects of the period now in the British Museum, are particularly satisfactory; besides atmosphere they have accuracy and charm. "The origin of the oceans, the rise and fall of continents, the theory of tides, undersea life, the chances of extracting gold and silver from sea water are all here discussed, together with many other aspects of oceanography. Wilfrid Bronson's chapters on the various biological groups of sea creatures, from protozoa to crustaceans, molluscs, and fish, are among the best, and his illustrations are helpful. The chapter on the discovery of the oceans, being history and not always accurate history, might better have been dropped from an otherwise excellent book for beginning scientists." New Yorker

"The beauty of this version of the Beowulf epic and the beauty of the illustrations are so perfectly in accord with each other and with the spirit of the epic itself, that one marvels at the whole. The story is told quietly, yet dramatically, simply but with the picturesque wording of an older English. The illustrations are bold, dramatic and beautifully designed.
There is invaluable material for the story hour and for reading for older boys and girls." E. L. Brock in Library journal

Buttons; drawings by Peggy Bacon. Viking 1938 [63p illus $2 (1-3) E

Story of an alley cat who became a gentleman. The story has been printed twice in this book: in the beginning without illustrations, so that it may be read straight through; then it is repeated, a few lines on a page—each part with its illustration

Illustrated with distinctive lithographs

In and out; verses by Tom Robinson; pictures by Marguerite De Angeli. Viking 1943 140p illus $2.50 (3-6) 811

"Poems about such exciting everyday things in a child's life as animals, birds, June bugs, trees, flowers, milk, teeth, grandmothers, dolls, swinging, rain." Library journal

"A book of verse which reflects the author's kinship to childhood. Marguerite de Angeli, in the accompanying pictures, has created a fair world of flowers and children, with rare perception and appeal. A beautiful book in design and format." N.Y. public lib.

Mr Red Squirrel, by Tom Robinson and Kurt Wiese. Viking 1943 [32p illus $1.50 (2-4) E

The story of a squirrel and the patient little girl who made friends with him in his natural surroundings

"Information concerning prehistoric life and accounts of the mighty animals that inhabited what has become our country. . . The illustrations are vigorous and graphic. For a wide range of readers." Bkl.

Animals in the sun; about crocodiles, lizards, turtles and snakes; drawings by I. B. Robinson; and an introduction by William Beebe. Harper 1934 56p illus o.p. 1946 (5-8) 598.1
"The animals in the sun are reptiles, a subject of never failing interest to young and old. Much information about them can be pleasantly acquired here. Drawings are done from life and add much to the interest of the book." Wis. bul.

At the seashore; with pictures by Irene Robinson. Macmillan 1942 [40]p illus $2 (1-3) E
A day at the seashore with Ann and Bill. They paddle in the surf, build tunnels in the sand, feed the sea gulls and make a collection of shells. Tells about the tiny creatures that live on the beach, in the pools and on the rocks—sea anemones, purple star-fish, tiny green crabs, barnacles, etc. Illustrated with large pictures on every page, many of them in color

At the zoo; with pictures by Irene Robinson. Macmillan 1940 [40]p illus $2 (1-4) E
"Ann Allen and her brother spend the day at the Zoo. They visit Monkey Island, watch the trained seals, the lions, tigers and bears, ride on the elephant's back, and meet many other animal friends. . . Pictures in black and white and in color." Library Journal

Beasts of the tar pits; tales of ancient America; drawings by I. B. Robinson. Macmillan 1932 46p illus $2 (5-8) 560
"Stories about the great prehistoric beasts that perished in the tar pits of southern California many centuries ago. As recently as 1906 . . . the skeletons of some of these beasts have been reclaimed wholly or in part, and upon the facts there learned these stories for young readers are based." Book rev. digest

"Mrs. Robinson's illustrations are reconstructions of these beasts when alive and have been checked by the models in the Los Angeles Museum. They have a fine dramatic quality that is thrilling to the reader and that makes the Pleistocene Age seem extremely real and vivid." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Big boy; with illus. by Irene Robinson. Macmillan 1944 55p illus $1.50 (3-5) Fic
"The story of a big shepherd dog who became a hero of the [second World war] and won his medal." Kirkus

Book of Bible animals; with drawings by I. B. Robinson. Harper 1938 58p illus $1.75 (4-6) 220

Nine stories from the Old Testament and a story of the sheep at the birth of Christ with eleven full page charcoal drawings

"Whether Bible stories prepared for children's reading should retain the words of the original, with such omissions and minor changes as are necessary for understanding or whether they should be entirely retold is a moot question and one that must most probably be decided according to individual taste. Mr. Robinson's retellings are simple and dignified." N.Y. Times

Elephants; with drawings by I. B. Robinson. Harper 1935 43p illus o.p. 1946 (4-7) 591.5

"The story of the elephant from prehistoric times made dramatic by powerful drawings in lithographic crayon. Will appeal to children of picture book age as well as to those in search of authentic information." N.Y. public lib.

On the farm; with pictures by Irene Robinson. Macmillan 1939 [40]p illus $2 (1-3) E

Birthday of a nation, July 4, 1776; with drawings by Frances Rogers. Lippincott 1945 232p illus $2 (7-9) 973.3

This narrative takes the reader behind the doors of the Continental congress in secret session as the patriot heroes—Washington, Jefferson, John and Samuel Adams, Benjamin Franklin and Patrick Henry—contend, day by day, with those who would appease, and submit to tyranny

"Includes text of Declaration of Independence, list of signers by states, and replica of signatures on end sheets. Good supplementary material for junior and senior high school." Bkl.

5000 years of glass. Lippincott 1937 303p illus $3 (6-9) 666.1

Comprehensive account of the history, manufacture and uses of glass. Includes chapters on looking-glasses, the lens, pictorial windows and hints of the future developments of the industry

"Illustrated by many marginal sketches and some photographs." Bkl.

Fresh and briny; the story of water as friend and foe; with one hundred and two engravings of line drawings by the authors; with an index. Lippincott 1936 309p illus $2 (5-7) 551.4

"A fascinating book which tells of our dependence on water and also of the terror and destruction it may bring to man.
Water supplies, old and new, canals, with the story of the building of the Panama canal, soil erosion by wind and water and its control, floods up through 1936, water power and tides are among the subjects included." Bkl.

* Heels, wheels and wire; the story of messages and signals; with sixty-eight engravings of line drawings by Frances Rogers; with an index. Lippincott 1935

"The theme of the book is the development of communication through the ages.
Its progress on land and sea and through the air is presented in a lively manner and the text is illustrated with amusing line drawings. An interesting chronology of important dates in the history of the subject is included." Bkl.

Old Liberty bell; illus. by Frances Rogers.
Lippincott 1942 106p illus $2 (5-8) 974.8

A "story of the Liberty bell, America's revered symbol of freedom, highlighting its course through American history from its original casting in London in 1752 to its final homecoming in Independence Hall.
Includes a list of Liberty bell's important dates." Bkl.

"Incidents are well chosen and dramatically presented. Indexed, but information is not direct enough to be valuable for reference use. Book is inspirational rather than information. Wide margins, good print, and satisfying illustrations . . . make it an attractive volume." Library journal

Paul Revere; patriot on horseback; drawings by Frances Rogers. Lippincott 1943 214p illus $2 (7-9) 92

A biography of Paul Revere which stresses his role in the American revolution

"Fascinating short accounts of fifty animals and birds, both real and imaginary, which formerly adorned the shields and emblems of the knights and nobles of medieval times. Sylvanus Mars, blazoner extraordinary, re-tells the legends, explaining the significance and virtues of the creatures. Simplicity characterizes the writing and decorative chapter-head drawings add to the attractive format; an alphabetical table of contents will facilitate using the material in school and public libraries." "The four young Turners accept their Uncle's invitation to make their home with him in Australia, leave the small Ohio town, and journey to Queensland. Through a series of misunderstandings they are thrown on their own resources temporarily and solve their difficulties with initiative and pluck. An interesting story into which is woven some natural history and scientific research." Bkl.

Land of williwaws; a story of adventure in Patagonia and the Falkland islands; with illus. by G. M. Richards. Houghton 1934 207p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"The scene is Patagonia and the Falkland Islands where blow the terrific gales, the williwaws, often referred to by navigators. Great interest in science and natural history motivates the story in which a thirteen-year-old girl proves, to her uncle and boy cousins, her fitness and ability to assist in scientific work. Plenty of adventure will make the book appeal to boys and girls alike." Bkl.

* Sing-song; a nursery rhyme book, and other poems for children; illus. by Marguerite Davis. Macmillan 1924 122p illus (Little library) $1 (3-4) 821

These poems were first published in 1872 "A nursery rhyme book unsurpassed for its lyric quality, technical workmanship, and birdlike spontaneity. The verses are brief and simple, but, in their own realm, they are comparable only with Blake's 'Songs of Innocence' and some of the recent poetry of Walter De La Mare. Except for an occasional poem which seems to present an adult mood, the verses are child-like and fanciful with touches of light and playful humor and now and then the admonition of a wise elder who is still a child at heart." Begging deer, and other stories of Japanese children; illus. by Lynd Ward. Macmillan 1928 109p illus $2 (4-6) S C
 Contents: Begging deer; Singing boards; Ukiko and white puppy; Flying carp flags; Because Yuki could add; When the cherry tree bloomed; Seiji and the pearls; Bird who said baba

"Gay orange-spotted deer leaping over the end-papers, black-and-white and colored illustrations with real Japanese spirit, make this an attractive book. The stories are pleasant little pictures of Japanese child-life, but are of no absorbing interest. One, 'When the cherry tree bloomed,' arouses real suspense as to the outcome of the cherry blossom arranging contest, and is consequently the story best suited for telling." Wis. bul.

- Stories of the Latin American states. rev ed Crowell 1941 421p illus $2.50 (7-9) 980

First published in 1934. This revision has added a chapter on the Panama canal zone; the chapters on Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands have been rewritten. The population data have been revised, additions have been made to the Reading References at the end of each chapter, and an index has been supplied.

"The author of 'Stories of the states' here turns her attention to those countries south of us, presenting a bird's eye view of the Latin American states. The information about each state covers the area, population, climate, products, education, etc., with some dramatic historical incident to add color and interest. Will create a better knowledge and understanding of these countries." Wis. bul.

First published in 1931. In this edition the population statistics have been brought up to date, additions have been made to the Reading References at the end of each chapter, and an index has been supplied.

"Gives for each state, territory, or dependency, incidents of its early history, the origin of its name, and a description of its capital. Includes also such information as the date of admission to the Union, the area, population, state motto, and the name of the state flower. An important feature is the picture of the seal of each state." Pittsburgh

"Chapters from Carl Sandburg's 'Abraham Lincoln: the prairie years,' covering Lincoln's boyhood and young manhood. A poetic, homely tale of struggle and hardship, written with great sympathy and understanding." Cleveland
 "The illustrations by James Daugherty catch the spirit of the book and of the times." Wis bul.

* Early moon; illus. by James Daugherty. Harcourt 1930 136p illus $2.50 (5-9) 811

There is an interesting chapter on poetry by Mr Sandburg, followed by seventy poems, some of which have appeared in "Corn-huskers" or "Chicago Poems" and some in magazines, grouped under the headings: Pictures of today, Children, Wind and sea, Portraits, Birds and bugs, Night, and End thoughts.

The vigorous illustrations by James Daugherty reflect the spirit of the poetry in an unusual way

Rootabaga stories; illus. and decorations by Maud and Miska Petersham. Harcourt 2v in 1 illus $2.75 (5-7) Fic

 This edition contains "Rootabaga stories" (1922) and "Rootabaga pigeons" (1923) reprinted in one volume with no change

"A collection of unique nonsense stories combining the realism of the American Middle West with a great deal of fancy and symbolism. A certain amount of repetition and the use of mouth-filling words create a rhythm and a singing quality which make the stories particularly suitable for reading aloud." Right book for the right child

Although these humorous and fantastic stories are regarded by many critics as a wonderful piece of imaginative and humorous literature, others object to the stories because of the use of vulgarisms and colloquial expressions

Beowulf; retold by E. V. Sandys; illus. by Rolf Klep. Crowell 1941 93p illus $2 (6-9) 398.2

"Prose retelling of the old legend of the Scandinavian hero. The three main incidents, feats of strength and courage, are included: the killing of the monster Grendel with his naked hands; the slaying of Grendel's mother at the bottom of the sea; and the fight with the dragon in his old age." Kirkus

Story of Peer Gynt, retold by E. V. Sandys; illus. by Fritz Eichenberg. Crowell 1941 114p illus $2 (6-9) 782

"Fritz Eichenberg's illustrations have caught the drollery and fantasy of Ibsen's drama, which is here turned to the narrative form without the loss of dramatic appeal. Inclusion of the five most popular themes from the Grieg suite at suitable points make the adoption even more just and satisfying." Wis. bul.

Winnebago boy. Harcourt 1937 182p illus $2 (4-5) 970.1

"The authors of this book attended the Indian ceremonial at Wisconsin Dells. The photographs they took and the information acquired have been used in this fine story of the ten year old Indian boy who attends the Stand Rock Ceremonial and learns from his parents the meaning of the customs and beliefs of his people. A thoroughly admirable book which interprets the Indians in this part of the country as 'Indians today' did for the Southwest." Wis. bul.

Schoolcraft, Henry Rowe, 1793-1864

Indian fairy book; from the original legends; with eight illus. in color by Florence Choate and Elizabeth Curtis. Stokes 1916 303p illus o.p. 1946 (6-8) 398

"Chosen from the many stories collected by Mr. Henry R. Schoolcraft, the first man to study how the Indians lived and to discover their legends. In 1856 this collection of his stories was published by Mason brothers in New York city. It is republished, [1916] with revisions and with new illustrations in color, so that these stories may be passed on as they deserve."

Foreword

"The stories are longer and more involved than those in 'The Red Indian fairy book,' [by Olcott]. The versions have dignity, and lack the abruptness which so often mars North American folk-lore." Toronto

The 1915 edition is analyzed in Eastman
This edition of a book first published in 1915 has a foreword by Anne Carroll Moore; the list of stories recommended for telling has been revised and brought up to date by Mary Gould Davis, making the book an exceptionally valuable one for the story-teller. The main body of the book remains the same

"Rich in suggestions illustrated by the author's own experiences and by many quotations from literature. The chapter answering 'Questions asked by teachers' is especially practical: there are quotations from stories successful or otherwise, eighteen stories used by Miss Shedlock, and a very full and specialized list of stories suitable for artistic story-telling. Sources are given." Wis. bul.

Stories included are: Sturla, the historian; Saga; Legend of St Christopher; Arthur in the cave; Hafiz, the stone-cutter; To your good health; Proud cock; Snegourka; Water nixie; Blue rose; Two frogs; Wise old shepherd; Folly of panic; True spirit of a festival day; Filial piety; Swineherd; Nightingale; Princess on the pea; Stories from the Eastern world; Stories from the Western world; Fanciful tales; Stories of the saints; Stories from Hans Andersen

 * Paul Bunyan; illus. by Rockwell Kent. Harcourt 233p illus $3 (7-9) 398.2
 First published 1924. The 1941 edition is illustrated with twenty-four full-page drawings and numerous smaller ones by Rockwell Kent
 The adventures of Paul Bunyan, the lumberjack's Hercules, have been told for years thru the great timber belt of the North. Mrs Shephard's version of the exploits of Paul Bunyan and his blue ox, Babe, was one of the first collections of the legends
 "The text is intended for the more mature reader and is told in the vernacular of the lumberjacks by one who claimed to have worked with the hero. Many more incidents are included than in Ida V. Turney's Paul Bunyan, the Work Giant; this book may well supplement Paul Bunyan and His Great Blue Ox, by Wadsworth. Suitable for junior and senior high school." Library Journal

"This story is of a Memphis family making its united stand against poverty with quiet courage. The period is that of hair-ribbons and high buttoned boots, starched petticoats and beaver hats. . . Yet the spirit of the Gill family is one which could have been found in an American home at almost any period and it has a special appeal to-day." N.Y. Times
- Faraway trail; illus. by Howard Simon.
Dutton 1940 212p illus $2.25 (5-6) Fic
"The long trail along which motherless Savannah and her family traveled, led from Tennessee to Arkansas. There they established their pioneer home, in the wilderness not far from Little Rock. While the story is not exciting it has a distinctive charm, for Savannah's delight in her daily activities, and her awareness of the beauty about her, make a quiet story which will appeal to many girls. Attractive format. Large type." Bkl.

"Lost Corner, a settlement in the piney hills of Arkansas, was where Jeb and Melissa Jackson lived with their father and mother and little Chris. Their simple manner of life, the children's share in the work, and the friendliness of the people of the region are all woven into a story whose plot is built on children's interests. The mountain idiom is used with restraint and skill and should offer little difficulty to children who have average reading ability." Bkl.

Dutton 1938 222p illus $2.50 (4-5) Fic
Story of an honest little Mexican boy who liked to draw pictures, and the donkey he rescued and returned to its artist-owner. The reward for his honesty was to be training in drawing and painting. The book includes glimpses of Mexican fiestas, weddings, games and village life
- Robin on the mountain; illus. by Howard Simon. Dutton 1934 178p illus $2.25 (4-6) Fic
"Robin was an Ozark mountain boy. His father being a share-cropper, the family moved from place to place. When they came to Possum Kingdom, Robin decided that he would like to live there longer, so he staked his claim, built a log house with the help of the neighbors and brought his surprised parents there. A delightfully sincere and simple story told in the fresh idiom of the region." Wis. bul.

Boomba lives in Africa. Holiday 1935 64p illus $1.75 (4-6) Fic
 The story of Boomba, the little ten-year-old brown boy, is realistic and based on the Baldridge's first-hand observation of West Africa and the tribes who live there. It is, however, more than a description of African village life; it is an imaginative and sensitive picture of a little boy whom ten-year-old readers will enjoy and understand as another child like themselves. . . Le Roy Baldridge's pictures have real beauty, with a depth and warmth that bring tropical Africa before our eyes, and, because of the harmony in the text, illustrations and design, the book is notable as a thoroughly pleasing whole." Red man's Luck; illus. by C. G. Granger.
Coward-McCann 1930 251p illus $2
(7-9) Fic

"Young Luck was an orphaned white boy who grew up spending part of his time with Long Shadow, chief of the Blackfeet, and the other half with the factor of the North-West company at Little Fort William. Because of his unique relationship he was often able to smooth out minor difficulties and at times prevent open warfare. The story of his adventures, through which runs his great passion for map making, is well told and will interest boys of twelve and over." Bkl.

Rob Roy; the frontier twins. Macmillan 1934 218p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"'Rob Roy' is well written, and like all Miss Skinner's books has a fine authentic historical background. The story moves briskly, the characters, among whom appears Andrew Jackson as a young man, are alive and real, and there is a delightful Scots tang to the humor." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Tiger who walks alone; frontispiece by W. L. Kihn. Macmillan 1927 211p illus $2 (7-8) Fic

"The story relates the adventures of an American boy in the wake of a Central American patriot general, with an astounding World war record among the Turks, who returns to the plateaus and jungles of his native republic and by means of a mighty legend of the half-man, half-jaguar leader of revolutions, ends the dictatorship and sets the peons on the road to calling their souls their own." White Leader; illus. by Remington Schuyler. Macmillan 1926 219p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"A frontier story of Tennessee after the Revolution. Andy MacPhail and other characters in 'Silent Scot' reappear." Cleveland

"The boy hero, Lachlan Douglas, is fictitious, but The White Leader and other of the prominent characters are historical. Besides the atmosphere and exciting events of pioneer days, the book pictures convincingly the efforts of the Spanish, French, Indians and Americans to gain possession of the frontier country." Christmas tree in the woods; decorations by Helen Sewell. Putnam 1932 38p illus $1.50 (4-6) Fic

"Mark and Margot went to Maine for the Christmas holidays. Luckily there was plenty of snow and they worked hard helping to make ready the outdoor Christmas tree. On Christmas eve there was a procession thru the woods to the great tree, carols were sung, and an unexpected visitor came, which made the Christmas scene quite complete. A charming story for young readers." Book rev. digest

"Sketches of Paul Revere as a silversmith, Duncan Phyfe as a cabinet maker, Thomas Jefferson as an architect and other early American craftsmen. Intended to give young people a background for appreciation of early American handicraft and modes of decoration." Cleveland

"Harrie Wood's delicate and animated drawings for 'Made in America' give it an unusually attractive form. The last few pages are devoted to photographs of Paul Revere silver, Duncan Phyfe furniture, and so forth. Seized upon immediately by teachers as an aid in making American history come alive, 'Made in America' is already genuinely liked by children as well." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Made in England; drawings by Harrie Wood. Nelson 1932 88p illus o.p. 1946 (6-9) 740.9

"Deals with the contributions of Christopher Wren, Wedgwood, Chippendale, Sheraton, and Hepplewhite, and of the silversmiths and porcelain makers, all of whom made eighteenth century England renowned in the history of decorative artistry." Bkl.

The illustrations for this slight book are charming

Made in Sweden; drawings by Gustaf Carlström. Putnam 1934 74p illus $2 (6-9) 740.9

"Swedish character and tradition, the remarkable museums and the modern decorative arts of the country are set forth in this small book with the keen perception and recognition of the cultural values of folk-art associated with the name of an author who made a refreshing contribution to children's books." A. C. Moore in N.Y. public lib.

Tranquilina's paradise; the drawings by Thomas Handforth. Putnam 1930 34p illus $2 (3-4) Fic

"Tranquilina was a carved angel which Don Pancho had bought to sell at the fair, along with a collection of toy animals. One night Tranquilina led the animals to paradise, which they all agreed was as nice as possible, and as soon as a little cherub had gone down to give Don Pancho a silver star, so that he could buy tortillas, they were all very happy." Book rev. digest

A revised and enlarged edition of a book first published 1899. Contains many new illustrations

"A story of everyday life in an Indian village and at the Santa Clara mission. While Docas is still a boy the story centers around him, but when he grows to manhood, his children and later his grandchildren are the central characters in the story." Right book for the right child

Snedeker, Caroline Dale (Parke) 1871-

- Beckoning road; illus. by M. de V. Lee. Doubleday 1929 326p illus $2 (7-9) Fic
"There is a bit of mystery in this sequel to Downright Dencey. The Quaker family leaves Nantucket and casts its lot with Robert Owen's community in Harmony, Indiana. The cross-country trip and the unusual setting in this 'ideal' village are vividly described." Chicago

- Downright Dencey; with illus. by M. W. Barney. Doubleday 1927 314p illus $2 (6-9) Fic

"How an impulsive little Quaker girl threw a stone at a friendless boy and the troubles she had before she was fully forgiven. Told with sympathy, charm and in the full spirit of the place and time—Nantucket, over a hundred years ago." Cleveland

"An uncommonly fine story for girls of twelve and over." N.Y. public lib.

- * Forgotten daughter; illus. by Dorothy Lathrop. Doubleday 1933 309p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"Chloë was the daughter forgotten by her Roman father. Her mother died and Chloë grew to girlhood as a slave, suffering many hardships. Her romance with a young, high-born Roman whom, unknown, she saved from death is beautifully told, and in the end double remembrance comes for the 'forgotten girl' . . . an accurate picture of the ancient Greeks and Romans." Ontario library review

"The pictures by Dorothy Lathrop are decorative enough to suggest vase-paintings without losing their dramatic quality as illustrations of a story full of stirring incident." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

- Perilous seat; illus. by M. de V. Lee. Doubleday 1923 314p illus o.p. 1946 (6-9) Fic
"A delightful tale of Delphi in the time of the second Persian invasion which gives an excellent idea of the life of the times without losing its charm as a story." Cleveland

- * The Spartan. Doubleday 1912 466p illus $2 (8-9) Fic

Formerly published under the title: Coward of Thermopylae

"Sets forth with vivid interest the story of Aristodemus, who alone of the Three hundred came back from Thermopylae and was taunted with being the 'Coward of Thermopylae.' It is sufficiently idealized to be genuine fiction, though devoid of any love interest, and the color and atmosphere of ancient Greece give it decided charm." Bkl.

- * Theras and his town; illus. by M. W. Haring. Doubleday 1924 252p illus $2 (5-6) Fic

"Athens and Sparta at the height of their power furnish the background for a little Athenian school-boy's exciting experiences. His consuming curiosity about his beautiful city, after his sheltered patrician home-life, almost leads to his kidnapping, while a forced sojourn in Sparta shows him the vast differences between the two cities." N.Y. state lib.

"The story will prove a pleasant stepping-stone to stories from Homer and Herodotus." Chicago

- Uncharted ways; illus. by M. de V. Lee. Doubleday 1935 340p illus $2 (8-9) Fic

"A dramatic and convincing story of Quakers in Puritan New England in 1650. The heroine is drawn from the character of Mary Dyer and the whole period is brought to life for the reader of today." N.Y. public lib.

- * White isle; illus. by Fritz Kredel. Doubleday 1940 271p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"Unsympathetic to Hadrian's rule, the patrician Favonius Claudian and his family were exiled from Rome to Britannia in the second century A.D. . . . The story . . . gives a good picture of social life in Gaul and Britain, and comes to a satisfactory ending when Lavinia is converted to Christianity and falls in love with a British born Roman." Bkl.

"The careful scholarship of Mrs. Snedeker traces step by step the route of the Claudia family as they meet friendship and danger, crossing Gaul and coming to the dread sea. Beyond that she binds together in this distinguished story the fragrant traditions of the earliest Christians of Britain with the highest culture of the Roman Empire." Horn book

Sperry, Armstrong, 1897-

All sail set; a romance of the "Flying Cloud"; written and illus. by Armstrong Sperry; introduction by William McFee. Cadmus 175p illus $1.20 to schools only (6-9) Fic

A reprint of the edition published 1935 by Winston. Lacks the colored illustrated lining papers and the wide margins of the original edition.

"The story of the famous clipper ship as told by young Enoch Thacher, who worked for Donald McKay, designer and builder of the 'Flying Cloud.' Later Enoch shipped aboard her as apprentice seaman and his story is that of the ship's maiden voyage around the Horn to San Francisco." Bkl

"William McFee's preface is a little essay on the untamable sea and the qualities of human mind and character that will never be put out of work by mechanical devices in dealing with it." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Bamboo; the grass tree; story and pictures by Armstrong Sperry. Macmillan 1942 47p illus $1.25 (3-5) Fic

Sun Yo lived in a bamboo house, somewhere on the banks of the Yantze river. As he watched a steamer loading bamboo he thought about all the wonderful uses of the "grass" tree. It provided houses, tools, furniture, fishing poles, boats and sails; its shoots were delicious to eat; its leaves made excellent raincoats

* Call it courage; illus. by the author. Macmillan 1940 95p illus $2 (5-8) Fic Awarded the Newbery medal, 1941

A tale of Mafatu who, though he was son of the Chief of Hikuera, feared the sea. Based on a legend of the Polynesian people "The struggle on the island is fierce enough to hold a boy's attention, and the pictures in dark blue, emphasize the loneliness, the sense of smallness against the vast sweep of nature, that was his chief trial. The story is wild enough to be remembered, and it cannot be remembered without doing good." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Coconut; the wonder tree; story and pictures by Armstrong Sperry. Macmillan 1942 47p illus $1.25 (3-5) Fic

Toto lived on a South Sea island. All around him grew the tall coconut palms that provided Toto's family with food, drink, shelter, household utensils, and medicine. Woven leaves were made into mattresses, and the trunks, hollowed to fit the shape of a head, became pillows. Toto was proud of the coconut tree, and grateful for all that it gave him.

* Hull-down for action; illus. by the author. Doubleday 1945 213p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"In this story, Judd Anders, hero of [the author's] 'Lost Lagoon,' is the victim of a planned mutiny. As a Nazi and a Jap spy make off with his ship on the fateful December 7th, Judd and his three friends are cast adrift on a raft. They reach Guadalcanal and have many adventures. . . . A rousing adventure yarn. Good handling of native problems. . . . [with] background material familiar to the author who spent several years in the South Pacific." Kirkus

Little Eagle, a Navajo boy; written and illus. by Armstrong Sperry. Winston 1938 102p illus o.p. 1946 (3-4) Fic

The story of a fourteen-year-old Navaho boy of Canyon de Chelly, Arizona and of his ambition to attend the government school. Illustrations in color and black and white

Lost lagoon; a Pacific adventure; illus. by the author. Doubleday 1939 277p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

Story of mystery and adventure among the islands of the South seas. Treasure seekers, a young scientist, and several villains are involved in the plot

"Full of danger and suspense is this brilliantly illustrated book of seafaring among the islands of Polynesia. . . . The plot, if not new, is well sustained and the glamour of South Sea voyaging is over all." Horn book

One day with Jambi in Sumatra; told in words and pictures. Cadmus 165p illus $1.32 to schools only (3-4) E

First published 1934 by Winston

"Here is a . . . picture-story book of a boy's everyday doings on the island of Sumatra by the author of 'A Day with Manu.'" Horn book

One day with Manu; story and pictures by Armstrong Sperry. Cadmus 164p illus $1.32 to schools only (3-4) E

First published 1933 by Winston. The Cadmus edition lacks the illustrated lining papers of the Winston edition

A story of the South Seas

"The numerous double page illustrations, some in black and white, some in clean, dashing color, need no interpretative text. Their bold emphatic outlines tell a vivid story of luxurious foliage, clear air and lively children." Library journal

One day with Tuktu, an Eskimo boy; story and pictures by Armstrong Sperry. Cadmus 166p illus $1.32 to schools only (3-4) E

"Younger children will undoubtedly envy Tuktu his dramatic adventures while absorbing a good deal of information about Eskimo life and traditions. Mr. Sperry's black and white illustrations, bold and rugged, are well adapted to the spirit of the text, and there are numerous pictures glittering with the colors of the northern lights, which have been beautifully reproduced." N.Y. Times

* Storm canvas; written and illus. by Armstrong Sperry. Winston 1944 301p illus $2.50 (7-9) Fic

The adventures of an American boy in the War of 1812 on board the U.S. frigate Thunderbolt

"It is a tale that many girls and boys will enjoy with its authentic detail of seafaring in the days of the sailing ships and of tactical manoeuvres which are of especial interest to sea story addicts." Ontario library review

"Armstrong Sperry writes with knowledge of the sea and his pictures add their salty tang to the exciting story." Horn book

Seagoing glossary: p295-301

Wagons westward; the old trail to Santa Fe; written and illus. by Armstrong Sperry. Winston 1936 276p illus o.p. 1946 (6-9) Fic

"On the trip with the wagon train over the Santa Fé trail in 1846, Jonathan Starbuck found himself in strange company

"A tale of Nantucket during the Revolutionary war. The hero, young Timothy Pinkham, altho not out of his teens, goes thru one exciting adventure after another, helping his Quaker friends and relatives in their desperate struggle for existence, and in each case comes out safely. The story ends with the close of the Revolution. For older boys." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Stackpole's first book is a straightforward, moderately ingenious tale of adventure, simply and agreeably told. It has the advantage of dealing with a phase of the Revolutionary War quite unfamiliar to most of us, and it contains enough of fighting and enough hairbreadth escapes to satisfy the most exacting of readers." "Continues the story of Timothy Pinkham begun in Smuggler's Luck. This describes the search for an old sailor's treasure, and the use of that treasure when found in rescuing Tim's father from the Barbary pirates." Book rev. digest

"The book is genuine and honest, the author writes with a sincerity that is very pleasing and, when he does not involve himself too deeply in confusing details, can describe an incident with gusto and effectiveness." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Standard catalog for high school libraries;

* a selected catalog of 3800 books. Part 1. Dictionary catalog; Part 2. Classified catalog. 4th ed Edited by I. S.
Monro, assisted by Ruth Jervis. Wilson, H.W. 1942 1150p (Standard catalog ser) service basis 027.8 Bibl.

This catalog, with its 1943-1945 supplement, lists some 4800 books. The selection has been made for the junior and senior high schools. The catalog is kept up to date by annual supplements which are free to purchasers of the main catalog, the fifth edition of which is planned to be published in 1947. A valuable feature of the catalog is the analysis of books containing desirable material from the school point of view. The subject headings used are the same as those in the Children's Catalog so that librarians, teachers and pupils can readily make use of both catalogs. Pamphlets are listed in both the main catalog and the Supplements and a list of sources for pictures and illustrative material will be found in the main catalog

Also obtainable in a special edition for Catholic schools with a supplement of more than 500 books fully entered and many more in notes

"Giving the spelling, division, pronunciation and meaning of more than 39,000 words and phrases, with illustrative examples of their correct use in English speech and literature, together with 4,000 synonyms and 1,500 pictorial illustrations in half-tone, line, and color, including full-

"In this clearly printed and well-illustrated dictionary, 39,000 terms are defined for the use of students in the four grades preceding high school. Selection of terms was based on their frequency in literature, science and the arts. Abbreviations, names of persons and places, common nouns, prefixes and suffixes are presented in one alphabet. . . This dictionary is planned for younger pupils than the same publishers' Standard High School Dictionary. . . It is briefer, containing about three quarters as many entries. It is simpler, omitting the derivations of words and the appendixes, as well as using a more elementary preface. It retains the same order, arrangement and illustrations of the volume for more mature readers." Subscription books bulletin

"The scene of the story is Birmingham, Alabama, soon after the Civil war, during those years which witnessed its emergence as an industrial city. To it came many people whose loyalty and devotion were sorely taxed before it became the city they envisioned. Among them were Molly Ann Somers, who found there romance and adventure of an unexpected sort, and Amarantha Gay, who met many obstacles in her career as a physician." Bkl.

"Now that the third of the novels for girls, each complete in itself, coming in succession from Mrs. Sterne, has completed her trilogy of renaissance in the Old South, the historical value of the whole undertaking becomes as apparent as the entertainment value of the separate pieces. This is no romance of dear dead days, remembered in longing. It is a picture of the way one corner of one Southern state pulled itself out of post-war turmoil and worked itself into the new era." * Bee-man of Orn, and other fanciful tales. Scribner 193p illus $2 (4-7) Fic

Other tales: The griffin and the minor canon; Old pipes and the dryad; The queen's museum; Christmas before last; Prince Hassak's march; The battle of the third cousins; The banished king; The philopena

"Stockton's 'fanciful' stories have a straightforward matter-of-factness that lends an air of realism to his themes. His originality, variety, and playfully pointed humour, make these stories especially good to read aloud." Toronto

* Buccaneers and pirates of our coasts; with illus. by George Varian and B. W. Clinedinst. Macmillan 1898 325p illus $2.50 (6-9) 910

"An author of pirate stories does not often write from the premise that all pirates were a 'bad company' with little, if anything, to recommend them—but this is Stockton's basis for these accounts of the buccaneers of the Atlantic seaboard. The result is no loss of pirate bravado and glorious adventure, and the light touch adds a piquancy which is lacking in Pyle's . . . book of pirates." Right book for the right child

"Familiar stories from Aesop, Uncle Remus, and even Indian folk tales, are given a new setting among the cliffs and sands of Mexico, with its cactus thorns, gourds, and señors in somberos. The chief character in many of the stories is the coyote, but rabbits, doves, and eagles, lions, and even the lively cricket are included. The writing is not outstanding but it will be a useful book of Mexican folk tales of which there are few available." Ontario library review

1933 263p illus o.p. 1946 (7-9) 904

An English publication limited to the European countries and ancient Egypt

"Miss Stuart traces the daily life of the typical girl-child from the time when King Akhnaten of Egypt took his five small daughters with him to worship the sun-god, to the little girls of Victorian England. We see the little girls of Ur and Thebes, Athens and Rome, of the dark ages, the renaissance, and the age of steam." Book rev. digest

The 1939 edition is the same as the 1934 edition except for the insertion of a 14 page "War supplement," pagged separately, and covering the second European war up to March 1941. Maps are unchanged

In addition to the countries of Europe, it includes the British possessions and Africa. Has 22 colored maps and an appendix of statistical tables. Well illustrated.
The population statistics are based on the 1930 census

"Its first aim is to help the pupil to a clear understanding of the many geographical references which he meets through the press, the radio, the movies, and other forms of modern communication.
It is a geography in the true sense, but links its story with history and the other social studies wherever such correlation vivifies for the pupil the topic under consideration." Preface

First published 1941. The 1944 edition adds the illustrations

An attractive edition, with 13 illustrations in color and black and white

"The story of an eleven year old boy . . . [whose] one intense desire [is] that he have a colt of his own. . . The whole action of the story takes place against the pattern of a ranch devoted to raising blooded horses, out in Wyoming. At last his wish is granted, and he chooses his yearling, against all advice. The story is centered on the process of winning 'Flicka' and of proving the rightness of his choice."

* Little Blacknose; the story of a pioneer; illus. by Lynd Ward. Harcourt 1929 149p illus $2 (3-5) Fic

"Little Blacknose is the name given by the author to the DeWitt Clinton engine that stands on the balcony of the New York Central station in New York City. In dramatic text and in black and white illustrations both author and artist tell his story for children, particularly of that memorable day when he made history by drawing the first train from Albany to Schenectady. This is a real book for those who like engines or machinery of any kind. Girls as well as boys will enjoy it." Cleveland

* Railroad to freedom; a story of the Civil war; illus. by James Daugherty. Harcourt 1932 364p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92
 "The book tells the story of Harriet Tubman, the Negro girl who escaped from slavery herself and then brought more than three hundred of her people to the North and freedom by way of the Underground Railway. . . . There are so many dramatic incidents in her story that one wonders that Harriet Tubman's life has not been used before in a book for young people. . . . The fine illustrations catch the spirit of the text. For older boys and girls." N.Y. Times

Hezekiah Horton; pictures by Oliver Harrington. Viking 1942 39p illus $1 (2-4) Fic

Hezekiah is a colored boy living on Lenox Avenue in Harlem. His only ambition is to own a car when he gets older. A kind man comes along in a superb red automobile with a top which goes up at the press of a button and he gives the boy and his friends a ride

Tarshis, Elizabeth (Kent) 1913-

Village that learned to read; illus. by Harold Haydon. Houghton 1941 158p illus $2 (4-7) Fic

"A tale of a Mexican village where the establishment of their first school was to be celebrated by a fiesta when every child learned to read. Pedro, whose ambition was to be a bull-fighter and not a scholar, alone spoiled the record, and the whole community cooperated to bring him into line." Kirkus

"A nice understanding of children's appreciation of poetry is shown in the selection of these eighty or more modern poems. They are divided into two groups—those that have been heard and enjoyed by children under ten, and those more suitable for older children. Each poem is preceded by a short introductory note. Good make-up and many illustrations." Bkl.

Pris Bentley, just out of high school, was faced with the problem of earning half the money for her college education. She finds the answers to her troubles at Aunt Cilla's tearoom in the country. There she learns the value of money, hard work and true friends and in the end discovers a real vocation for herself
- M. W. Thompson's "Pattern for Penelope; decorations by James MacDonald" (Longmans 1943 276p illus $2.25) is another career story in which Penelope Austin finds a place for herself as assistant to her veterinarian uncle
- Highway past her door; decorations by Vera Neville. Longmans 1938 235p illus $2 (7-9) Fic
"This story which tells how a girl suddenly thrown on her own resources establishes and successfully conducts a road side market, follows the usual pattern of such stories but the characters are not overdrawn and the incidents are interestingly told. Judy's success affords a helpful suggestion as to what can be done by hard work and determination." Baldwin

Thorndike Century junior dictionary. rev ed Scott 1942 940p illus $1.48 423

First published in 1935. This edition contains 27,000 words most frequently printed in the English language. They are in one single alphabetical list, which includes proper names and abbreviations. Etymologies and appendixes are omitted. A full pronunciation key is found on the end papers and on p20. A short pronunciation key is printed at the bottom of each righthand page. Pronunciation is indicated immediately after the word. The part of speech follows the definitions. Last of all, there is a number that tells the frequency of the use of the word, which may be slightly confusing to the ordinary child, but should be helpful to the teacher.

Over 1600 line drawings are scattered throughout the text.

A fairy tale with kings, princes, enchanted deer, as well as wizards, dwarfs, perilous labors, and dark enchantment.

"A fairy tale for children and grown-ups. . . The tale is told with a shrewd sharp humor shot through with the loveliness of an enchanted forest, but in spite of the fantasy, there is a fine solid fairy tale basis, and no one can doubt for a minute that the right prince—the one with the gallant heart—will succeed before his more worldly wise brothers. The illustrations are a happy blend of beauty and magic." Ontario library review

First published 1924. The 1940 edition is a reprint with minor changes, new prefatory material, glossary and index.

There is one chapter each on Formosa and Korea; the rest of the book is about Japan.

"This volume on Japan is one of the most satisfactory travel books for children we have seen. With poetic feeling and without sentimentality the author interprets the country in a way to appeal to boys and girls without writing down to them. The full page pictures are excellent and while the total absence of margin may offend at first, the feeling grows that the added space for detail compensates." Wis. bul.

Romance of Antar; illus. by Samuel Glanckoff. Coward-McCann 1929 219p illus $2.50 (7-9) 398.2

"From sources of great length the author has retold the central theme of the hero legend of the pre-Mohammedan Arabs. It tells of Antar, famed warrior, poet and lover, and this rendering retains the virility, romance, and color of the folk epic. Fine material for the story-teller desiring a rich background of Arabian life." Bkl.

Fisherman Tommy. Houghton 1940 47p illus $1.50 (3-4) Fic

"Sanford Tousey has a following among the younger boys who want books they themselves can read about subjects that interest them, such as cowboys, Indians, and life in the West. This new title will satisfy boys from seven to nine who find a fisherman's way of life glamorous. In the course of a simple narrative Tommy learns how lobsters are caught, how to dig clams, and how a swordfish is harpooned. The make-up and color printing of this book are superior to that found in some of Mr. Tousey's other books." Library Journal

1942 75p illus $2 (3-5) Fic
Jane was a Dutch doll, and her mistress, eight-year-old Jyd Trewerry, loved her so hard that one day Jane blinked her eyes and smiled. From then on Jyd had more fun with Jane than she'd ever had before in her life.

"An original fairy tale, rooted in Cornish soil and flavored with Cornish ways. An appealing and childlike book, both in text and format." N.Y. public lib.

- Piskey folk; a book of Cornish legends; collected by Elizabeth Yates; illus.
with photographs by William McGreal.
Contents: Piskey revelers; Skerry-Werry; Piskeys on the mare's neck; Piskey warriors; Nurse who broke her promise; Curious woman of Davidstow; Why Jan Pendogget changed his mind; Boy who played with the piskeys; Spinning plate; Bucca Boo's little merry men; Gnome maiden; Thunder axe; Brotherhood of little shadows

"Most of the stories are fresh and interesting, with an outdoor atmosphere suggestive of the Cornish country. The best of the tales are those in which Miss Tre-garthen kept most closely to the form in which the tales were told to her by her Cornish neighbors who had seen the Piskeys or felt the Piskey touch. Mr. Mc-Greal's photographs are very lovely." A.

"The dignified name of Elijah the Fish-bite was given to the small tiger-striped kitten because it was in church, on the morning that Father preached about Elijah, that Jimmie found him walking on the chancel floor. . . . The four parsonage children and Elijah get into any number of difficulties but Elijah saves the situation more than once. He is a kitten with sense and personality. A well written, humorous story for boys and girls." Library Journal

"A book for boys and girls which introduces them to a fascinating hobby and tells how to build a worth-while stamp collection. A new and complete Stamp identification table makes it easy to discover the country to which any stamp belongs." Subtitle

"Beginning with a brief historical outline of the purpose and early use of stamps the author goes on to the methods and means of collecting stamps. He discusses the various papers used and how to detect the different kinds; he advises the tools necessary, gives the name and subscription price of reliable weekly and monthly stamp journals and deals, among other aspects of the hobby, with perforations and overprints, cancellations and counterfeits and devotes one chapter to United States stamps." Li-

Last pirate; tales from the Gilbert and Sullivan operas; illus. by Reginald Birch. Harcourt 1934 319p illus o.p. 1946 (6-9) 782

Contents: Pirates of Penzance; The Mikado; The gondoliers; Iolanthe; Ruddigore; Patience; H.M.S. Pinafore

"The author has retold in story form seven Gilbert and Sullivan operas, introducing and connecting them with a slight narrative. With its numerous and fitting illustrations, the book will serve as an admirable introduction to the humor and light-hearted romance of the originals." Bkl.

* (ed.) Rainbow in the sky; illus. by Reginald Birch. Harcourt 1935 xxvii, 498p illus $3 (3-8) 821.08

"This anthology includes a wide selection of poetry for children of six to twelve, arranged under thirteen indicative headings, such as Jingles old and new; Wind, weather, seasons and chorus; Boys and girls; Riddles in rhyme. For each section, as well as for the book itself, Mr. Untermeyer has written a discerning introduction which may open up pleasant avenues of thought or conversations about poetry. The choice of illustrator is particularly happy as many of these rimes and poems called for an artist adept in revealing jollity and gentle humor. Author, title, and first line indexes." Bkl.

* (ed.) Stars to steer by; with pictures by Dorothy Bayley. Harcourt 1941 352p illus $2.50, textbook ed $1.20 (4-9) 821.08

Includes 150 poems arranged under the following headings: Bridge of books; Roads for wandering; Once upon a time; Tales of fact and fancy; Merry heart; Fables wise and otherwise; All sorts of people; The zoo; Earth, sky, and sea; Around the seasons; Cry of humanity; Folk-sayings, signs, and charms; Nothing but nonsense; With many voices; Unconquerable soul. Indexes of authors and titles

An excellent selection of poems, interspersed with informal interpretations by Louis Untermeyer

- * (ed.) This singing world; an anthology of modern poetry for young people; illus. by F. W. Ivins. Harcourt 1923 xxi, 445p illus $3 (5-9) 821.08
 "Three hundred twenty-one poems of forty-nine English and American writers, chosen for their appeal to readers from 9 to 16 years of age, and likely to please adults as well. Selection excellent, relatively unfamiliar, and unusually rich in humor. Author, title and first line indexes." N.Y. state lib.
 "Sounds a . . . refreshing note in anthologies for children. . . Such a live anthology with direct appeal to older boys and girls [is] needed in library reading rooms and school libraries. Florence Wyman Ivins's drawings, while turning it into a gift book of genuine value, have not blinded the publishers to the necessity of giving it a durable but very attractive outward form." A. C. Moore in Bookman
 Louis Untermeyer's "This singing world for younger children" (Harcourt 1926 382p illus o.p. 1946) is an abridged volume, containing about two thirds of the material in "This singing world" and a few additional classics

 "It is a comparatively recent yesterday to which the poets represented in the first section belong—those born between 1800 and 1850. The second part is devoted to the work of poets of our own times, represented by living authors mostly. Many teachers have had an advisory part in the selection. A Who's who among the poets is included, also a list of famous older poems and a supplementary reading list." Book rev. digest by H. W. Van Loon. Dodd 1943 106p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"The serene citizen from Monticello who gave us an American way of thinking and who gained world-wide renown by his noble understanding of that most difficult of all the arts, the art of living, as he felt that it should be practiced in the republic of which he was one of the founders." Subtitle

"The author sets out to show why Jefferson was the greatest American of all times and does so briefly, but in a discursive and entertaining manner. This is not a conventional biography, but an interesting one; it is a bold interpretation of Jefferson and of his way of thinking and living, rather than a well-rounded account of his life and achievements." Bkl.

"Beautiful type and illustrations; eighteenth-century chapter headings." Library journal

Van Loon's geography; the story of the world; written and illus. by H. W. van Loon. Garden City pub. co. 525p illus $1 (7-9) 910

First published by Simon & Schuster 1932

"A popularly written geography emphasizing the human interest side of the story of the world we live in: why we live where we do, where we came from, what we are doing. Contains many illustrations by the author, some in color." Book rev. digest

"Highly readable and enjoyable book, full of interesting and enjoyable material, though greatly injured by inaccuracy and lack of knowledge." Sat. rev. of lit.

First published in 1926, this book has been revised frequently to keep pace with increased mechanization in railroad operation and maintenance

"A comprehensive survey of American railroads, by the professor of transportation at Columbia university. Professor Van Metre set out to tell his son about our railroads and became so interested in his story that it grew to book size. It includes such information as the history and development of steam railroads; the railroads and the railroad track; and operation of trains." Providence

- * Tramps and liners; illus. with photographs. Doubleday 1931 324p illus $3 (6-9) 387

Contents: Ocean highway; From galley to motorship; Tons and knots; Tramps and liners; Shipbuilding; What makes them go; Floating palace; Cargo ships; Gateways to the sea; Ships at sea

"The many interesting things connected with ship transportation are included in this comprehensive and enthusiastic discussion; the details of shipbuilding and launching, the various kinds of propelling power, sail, steam and motor, ocean routes, the development from galley to motorship, cargo ships, the loading and unloading of cargoes, the de luxe ocean liners. . . Over 150 illustrations from photographs and drawings." N.Y. libraries

- Andries, written and illus. by Hilda van Stockum. Viking 1942 192p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

Andries, who lived in Holland "is suddenly orphaned and is taken in by a gruff old bachelor uncle who lives in a dreary big house. The boy of ten yearns for affection but receives none until a kind mother of four in a neighboring little house gives him the warmth he needs." Kirkus

"Kindly humor and warm-hearted relationships characterize an entirely natural story of childhood in Holland." N.Y. public lib.

- * Cottage at Bantry bay; written and illus. Hilda van Stockum. Viking 1938 252p illus $2.50 (5-7) Fic

"Story of the O'Sullivan children and their father and mother, who lived in a little cottage in Ireland. The father was a brave storyteller and some of the stories he told are included. The little dog the children rescued from the gypsies became an important part of the family, and at one time dug up a buried treasure which helped the O'Sullivans considerably." Book rev. digest

Followed by "Francie on the run"

- Day on skates; the story of a Dutch picnic; with illus. by the author; foreword by E. St V. Millay. Cadmus 40p illus $1.32 to schools only (3-5) Fic

First published 1934 by Harper. The Cadmus edition does not follow as closely the interspersing of the colored illustrations as in the original edition. Includes a single page index

"A charmingly illustrated and well told story of an all day skating tour. Both pictures and text have the vitality and integrity of real Dutch children at play in their own country. The artist-author is known abroad as a painter of miniatures." A. C. Moore in N.Y. public lib.

- Francie on the run; written and illus. by Hilda van Stockum. Viking 1939 303p illus $2.50 (6-8) Fic

"Seven months was a long time for six-year-old Francie O'Sullivan to be in a Dublin orthopedic hospital, away from his family and his dog Bran. One day he decided to walk back to County Cork, but he started in the wrong direction. . . His adventures are amazing as well as amusing, and the generous carefree nature of the Irish people is well pictured." Bkl.

Follows "Cottage at Bantry bay." Followed by "Peegen"

- Gerrit and the organ; written and illus. by Hilda van Stockum. Viking 1943 178p illus $2.50 (4-6) Fic

"The story of the small grandson of an old toymender [of Amsterdam] and of the adventures that befell him when he undertook to be—secretly—the friend and guardian of a cranky old organ-grinder. The period is the time of; the childhood of Queen Wilhelmina." Kirkus

- * The Mitchells; written and illus. by Hilda van Stockum. Viking 1945 246p illus $3 (4-6) Fic

Adventures of a typical American family in war time when the father was in the navy

"From the first chapter, with Mother getting them all back from the railroad station after seeing Daddy off, to the last page, with Joan practically in heaven because at last she has a dog, the story is filled with healthy entertainment." Weekly book rev.

- * Peegen; written and illus. by Hilda van Stockum. Viking 1941 268p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

An Irish story about Peegen, a small lively girl with a big imagination, who came to live with the O'Sullivan family

"A charming story with interpretive pictures as true to Irish home life as it is to child nature." N.Y. public lib.

"The Finca is a coffee plantation. The particular one of this story was deserted and later became the home of a roving family who had lost their own Finca in the lowlands of Panama." Hunting "Because it deals with the good earth and the things that grow from the earth it leaves a lasting memory of the land, of the coffee trees with their dark shining leaves and crimson berries, of the way in which coffee is grown and picked and dried. . . The illustrations are unusual."

"To learn to do a man's work, to reach man's estate, to own a horse—that was the consuming desire of eleven-year-old Pablo.
An understanding story of a boy's earnest, but often disastrous endeavors under the kindly guidance of his father. The setting is a mountain farm of Honduras." Bkl.

"The information the book conveys—more than most children get in geography lessons—is carried by the interest a young reader takes in what happens to Pablo.
The talk is natural and easy, the picture authentic. The author, wife of an explorer, has often accompanied him through these regions, while the illustrator also knows the country well." Books (N.Y.

"A true picture of Indian child life in the jungles of British Guiana is given in this . . . story of a little Arawak boy and his sister. The drawings are in harmony with the text." N.Y. public lib.

"The author spent months with the two

The story of Jamba, from the jungle-quiet herd of wild elephants thru captivity and training, to freedom again, and the final struggle of allegiance between man and the jungle

"A dramatic story of the relationship between a boy and the kingly beast he has tamed. There is fascinating information in the book, as well as convincing interpretation of character, emotion, and the African jungle." N.Y. public lib.

* Lions on the hunt; illus. by Kurt Wiese.
 Viking 1942 251p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

Sur-Dah was a young lion of the African veldt, who grew up to be the chief of his pack

"Contrasting with the lion's excursions over the veldt, runs life in the Lulu village where the chief and his warriors vainly invoke their gods for rain, and then prepare to hunt the hungry pack of lions.
 The story is full of drama and suspense, and the feel of the South African veldt."

 Viking 1940 208p illus $2 (7-9) 916.7

"A semi-biographical account of the high spots of Waldeck's three journeys to Africa as a scientist and photographer.
 The author has a genuine enthusiasm for animals and for the unknown. This interest is expressed in vigorous, highly entertaining prose." Library journal

The author "gives a detailed . . . account of a Safari to bring in specimens of African wild life (water buck, rhinoceros, crocodiles, leopards, lions, python, and many others) alive and unharmed for zoos, menageries and laboratories." Hunting

"These stories are more than just hunt-

Webster, Noah, 1758-1842

Webster's biographical dictionary . . . a dictionary of names of noteworthy persons with pronunciations and concise biographies. Merriam 1943 xxxvi, 1697p $6.50 920

William Allan Neilson, editor in chief

"A work of biographical reference not restricted in its selection of names by considerations of historical period, nationality, race, religion, or occupation, supplying the reader with full information on the syllabic division and the pronunciation of names included. . . American and British names have been included on a generous scale and often accorded fuller treatment than names of other persons of similar eminence." Preface

Webster's elementary dictionary; a Merriam-Webster; a dictionary for boys and girls. Am. bk. 1935 739p illus $1.44 423

The preface claims a vocabulary of 38,500 words of which over 26,000 are stated to be actually defined

"The purpose of this dictionary, as stated in the preface, is 'to make clear the correct meaning and use, and the correct spelling and pronunciation, of a selected vocabulary which comes within the range of reading of boys and girls, beginning with the early elementary grades' . . . In general, compared with the 'Thorndike-Century junior dictionary,' 'Webster' is perhaps more suitable for older children, and more useful as an introduction to the larger dictionaries. 'Thorndike' is more definitely a first word book, is more colloquial in style and includes more slang terms. The appearance of the page in 'Webster' is clearer and more pleasing. Both dictionaries would be very useful and would supplement each other, as many words contained in one are not in the other, and the definitions and explanations of words are different in character." My dear Patsy, a novel of Jefferson's daughter; illus. by Jessie Robinson. Bobbs 1941 315p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

"Covers the years of her girlhood spent in a Paris convent school, her return to the United States at the outbreak of the French Revolution, and her marriage. Her schoolmates were the daughters of France's foremost families and she moved for some time in high social circles. Her busy father found time to make her his companion and to instill in her a sense of social responsibility unusual in such surroundings. The author has followed her source material so closely that she has sacrificed plot. The book is most successful as a picture of the education of a girl of the upper classes in the Paris of the late eighteenth century." Library journal

"Nannerl, Baroness of Sonnenberg, and sister of Mozart, supposedly tells the story of Mozart's life to Petro her pupil. With love and a haunting regret for the frustrations of Mozart's career, she follows him from child-wonder in London to success as a composer in Vienna. Attractive in make-up, the book will appeal to children eleven to fifteen. Helpful appendixes are: Unfamiliar words and phrases used in the story, Orchestral instruments and musical compositions, Persons and places mentioned in the story, Mozart's journeys, Books about Mozart and music, and Mozart's compositions." - Handel at the court of kings; illus. by Mary Greenwalt. Dutton 1943 135p illus music $2.50 (4-6) 92 The author "shows young Handel as a real boy persisting in his determination to be a musician in the face of his father's opposition. She describes the life of the period, at court and elsewhere, in entertaining anecdotes, and outlines the events of his maturer years when he became the great 'Master of the oratorio.'" Horn book Contains many selections of Handel's music that are best understood and most apt to be mastered by young musicians

- * Ludwig Beethoven and the chiming tower bells; illus. by Mary Greenwalt.
 Dutton 1942 144 [22]p illus music $2.50 (4-7) 92

"Biography of Beethoven for young readers. It stresses the formative years of his life, describing his great love for chiming bells, his struggles to learn music, his great responsibilities, and skims lightly over his later years." Book rev. digest

"There is an abundance of pictures and, as in the other music biographies, many of the musician's compositions are included. A book that the child who is studying music will find very satisfying and one that will encourage musical interest and appreciation in all young readers." N.Y. Times

"A beautiful large book with . . . fine colored pictures and excellent choice of Christmas music. [The author] also tells short stories, either of how the songs came to be written, or how they were sung long ago. The selection includes such favorites as 'Away in a Manger', 'Silent night', the traditional 'Cherry Tree Carol', 'Deck the Hall' and 'Good King Wenceslas'.
 Music is given for twenty-nine carols."

"A musical play based on the authors'
 'Franz Schubert and His Merry Little Friends'. . . There are three acts with parts for twenty-three boys and three girls, and as many extras as are desired for choristers, students, and bystanders. . .

 Several of the actors would necessarily have to be musicians, through the dances and songs used are not difficult. The story deals with young Franz winning a place in the Royal Chapel Choir of Vienna, studying music under the great Salieri, and growing up into a popular musician of great talent." Library Journal

* Stuart Little; pictures by Garth Williams. Harper 1945 131p illus $2 (4-7) Fic

"The adventures of a youngster of a normal family who was no bigger than a mouse and looked just like one." American news of books

"Little Stuart is a very engaging hero and 'Stuart Little' is an entertaining book whether for children or their parents. If I also found it a little disappointing, perhaps that is because I had been expecting that E. B. White would write nothing less than a children's classic. His dialogue is good from beginning to end. Each of the separate episodes is entertaining, and one at least is uproarious. . . . But the parts are greater than the whole, and the book doesn't hold to the same mood or move in a straight line. There are loose ends in the story." N.Y. Times.

* Little house in the big woods; illus. by Helen Sewell. Harper 1932 176p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"This little story . . . has a refreshingly genuine and lifelike quality. The author writes of the life she knew and lived sixty years ago on the edge of the Big Woods of Wisconsin. She understands children's tastes and interests and the story of Laura and Mary and their parents, who lived in a log cabin, miles from neighbors and a settlement, is full of incidents, and accounts of daily doings that boys and girls will enjoy." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Followed by "Little house on the prairie"

* Little house on the prairie; illus. by Helen Sewell. Harper 1935 200p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"A sequel to 'Little house in the Big woods,' as well woven and simple in style as a piece of homespun. In a covered wagon the Ingalls family move West, and build a cabin on the Kansas prairie. That they settle on Indian territory and have to move on, is just another adventure for little Laura." Bkl.

Followed by "On the banks of Plum creek"

* Little town on the prairie; with pictures by Helen Sewell and Mildred Boyle. Harper 1941 288p illus $2 (6-9) Fic

Sequel to "The long winter." A "picture of life in the Dakota territory, summers on the homestead, winters in the prairie town, socials, suppers, spelling bees, revivals, church, school, literary societies—and adolescent ambitions and interests." Kirkus

* Long winter; with pictures by Helen Sewell and Mildred Boyle. Harper 1940 325p illus $2 (5-8) Fic

In this sixth book of the series, following "By the shores of Silver Lake," the brothers of "Farmer boy" again appear, and the Wilder and Ingalls families are brought together

"The plucky Ingalls move from their claim on the Dakota prairie into their store in town to escape the severe winter weather, but when blizzard follows blizzard the trains stop. School closes and the family struggles to keep warm, to keep up their spirits, and in the end only keep from starvation when the Wilder boy at great risk goes off to get wheat. When the train finally manages to reach the suffering settlement, they celebrate Christmas in May, with Laura always the main character. A beautiful picture of family life and of the indomitable spirit of our pioneers." Library journal

"Mrs Wilder's autobiographical novel for children, each book complete in itself but with strong cumulative interest, has brought Laura to her fourteenth year and into the strongest book in this unique undertaking." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

* On the banks of Plum creek; illus. by Helen Sewell and Mildred Boyle. Harper 1937 239p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"The adventures of the little girl of pioneering family in the Minnesota wheat country sixty years ago. She experiences fire, freshets, grasshoppers, and a three-day blizzard in her home on the banks of Plum creek. Continues the story of 'Little House in the Big Wood'." Book rev. digest

Followed by "By the shores of Silver Lake"

* These happy golden years; with pictures by Helen Sewell and Mildred Boyle. Harper 1943 299p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

The final book of the story of Laura Ingalls which was begun in "Little house in the big woods." Laura, not yet sixteen, now becomes a schoolteacher, and, when her last term is over, she marries Almanzo Wilder

"E. M. Wilmot-Buxton's life is, perhaps, less personal in tone than the life by Michael Williams. It has a more documentary character and will suit older readers who prefer the presentation of history rather than legend. It gives a very full account of Francis's life and of the period in which he lives, and an excellent picture of the early days of the Franciscan order. His portrait of Francis himself, if a little more sober, is none the less sympathetic and lifelike. Though both these books cover the same ground, the slight difference in treatment enables them to supplement one another admirably." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

 1940 280p illus $2 (7-9) 92

"Biography of the hero of Vincennes from his early boyhood as neighbor to Thomas Jefferson, his youth in Tidewater, Virginia, through pioneering days with Daniel Boone to the campaign against the British and Indians. . . Events of early American history are introduced naturally and Clark emerges an energetic and robust man who loved his country above all else." Bkl.

Shooting Star, the story of Tecumseh; illus. by Edward Shenton. Rinehart 1942 248p illus map $2 (7-9) 970.1

"The story of Tecumseh, Shawnee Indian chief—skillful warrior, true diplomat, and great humane spirit—whose dream of a confederacy of Indian tribes and lasting peace with the white men ended so tragically. [Bibliography]." Bkl.

"Writing with sympathetic understanding of the childhood and young manhood of the great Shawnee leader, Mr. Wilson gives a rounded picture of Tecumseh, not only as a warrior, but as a man. . . Shooting Star's story, well told as it is here, deserves to be known to each generation of young Americans." Horn book

New Winston dictionary for young people. . . Winston 1945 950, 24p illus maps $2 423

First published in 1936 under title "New Winston simplified dictionary for young people," frequently reprinted with slight variations. This edition (1945) omits the sections on Woodcraft, Foreign Words and Phrases, Names of Persons and Places included in the 1940 edition

Included in the main alphabet with definitions of about 46,000 words are many geographical, Biblical, mythological and literary names. An unusual feature is the inclusion of synonyms at the end of many entries. There are 1700 illustrations, 10 colored plates of birds, animals, flags, etc. and 24 pages of maps. Printed in clear, large type with pronunciation clearly indicated. Appendixes contain tables of weights and measures and money, signs and symbols used in writing and printing, signal codes, presidents of the United States, states, territories and cities of the United States, foreign countries and foreign cities

Also published with title: "Winston dictionary for schools" (Winston 1945 950, 24p illus maps $1.60, with thumb index $1.92)

Pedro's coconut skates; story and pictures by Esther Wood. Longmans 1938 191p illus $1.50 (4-5) Fic

"In story and pictures the author tells about a little Philippino boy whose curiosity constantly gets him into trouble but how his determination to learn about things brings him his reward and enables him to make his grandmother's dream come true." Baldwin

Pepper Moon; pictures by Laura Bannon. Longmans 1940 32p illus $2 (3-4) Fic

"Pepper Moon, a small high-class Chinese boy, longed for a dog, but a dog would have been out of place in the orderly house with the five courts. After a mouse, snails, a frog, a duck, a pig, and a water buffalo had turned up in unexpected places, the exhausted grandmother agreed to a dog as a lesser evil... In spite of her characteristic charm and the generous illustrations in color by Laura Bannon, this remains a luxury to be bought by the large library and the indulgent parent. Though a picture book in appearance, the text is not easy and would have to be read aloud to children younger than eight or nine." Library journal

An account of the early life of an American boy who turned a hobby into a profession and a description of his later researches into the habits of the animal world. "In his modest and willing way, he had contributed to two important medical advances: the development of anti-venoms and the therapeutic uses of modified venoms [and] greatly extended the boundaries of our knowledge of natural history."

"Sympathetic and entertaining biography of the man whose boyhood hobby of snake collecting developed into a successful and exciting career of scientist, writer, lecturer, herpetologist, and curator of reptiles and mammals of the New York zoological park. Will be enjoyed for its humor, adventure, and natural history, as well as for its portrait of Dr Ditmars." Bkl.

"American folk songs in the making,—children's rhymes, games songs, counting songs, nonsense jingles, and so on, a veritable Mother Goose American version... There's sectional interest and definite Americana value, all of which gives it an adult appeal. The foreword by John A. Lomax, curator of folk songs at the Library of Congress, establishes the authenticity and value. The Ed Hargis drawings are completely satisfactory, striking again the folk quality of the material." World book encyclopedia; modern, pictorial, comprehensive. Quarrie 1946 19v illus $82 030

First published in 1917, this is one of the standard encyclopedias for children and young people. It is revised at each printing to keep it up-to-date, to add new articles of current interest, and to expand older material where needed. The arrangement is alphabetical by specific subjects, so that no index is needed. Material and arrangement make the encyclopedia suitable for the elementary grades as well as for junior high school. The nineteenth volume entitled "Reading and study guide" contains a classified index organizing the contents of the encyclopedia under large headings such as Agriculture, Industry, Zoology

Detailed reviews of the encyclopedia and its frequent revisions may be found in various issues of the A.L.A. Subscription books bulletin, for example, Oct. 1932, p49-50; Oct. 1943, p53-54

Contents: Land of the Sioux; Life of the Sioux; Sioux boys and girls; Songs and stories; How the Sioux nation was born; Birth of a tribe; Gift of the peace pipe; How the two kettle band was named; Burnt Hip; Owl's warning; Snail and the beaver; How the rainbow came to be; Why the baby deer wears spots; How ducks got their colors; Why the leaves fall; Story of a hard winter; Iktomi seeks a bride; Beaver image; Fleetfoot; Putting the bee on Bruin; Sun gazer; Hunter and the wolf; Woman and the wolves; End of the world; Black hills; Vision of Bear butte; Guardian of the pools; How Devil's Tower came to be; How Enemy Swim lake was named; Punished Woman's lake; Maiden's isle; Lake of the Big Lodge; Sack of gold at Long lake; Story of Standing rock; How Snake butte was named; Naming of White river and the Badlands; Boy becomes a warrior; Hunter rides a buffalo; Buffalo hunter's escape; Story of the screaming ghost; Run for his life; Battalion of death; Scout who stopped a war; Fool soldiers band; Sitting Bull's dancing horse

"Collected from Sioux Indian reservations and illustrated by Sioux artists, these forty-five legends have never been published before. A brief description of the Sioux country and the everyday life of the people is presented, and the legends are divided into traditional lore, campfire tales, legends of places, and hunting and battle stories. The tales have the sound framework of all folklore. Told in very simple, clear language, some are subtle and some end with a fillip." Library journal

Reptiles and amphibians; an illustrated natural history. . . with decorations by the WPA Federal art project in the City of New York. . . Whitman, A. 1939: 253p illus (Junior press bks) $2.25 (6-8) 598.1

Contents: Crocodilians; The tuatara; Lizards; Snakes; Turtles; Worm-like amphibians; Salamanders and newts; Frogs and toads

"Similar in manner of presentation and in format to 'Birds of the world.' The brief accounts are scientifically accurate, the manner of writing is nontechnical, and the book covers such orders as alligators, lizards, snakes, turtles, salamanders, and frogs. One hundred and twenty candid-camera photographs, nine descriptive charts, and a map of distribution illustrate the text." Bkl.

Spanish-American song and game book. . . Barnes, A. S. 1942 87p illus $2.50 790

Describes "games which have been sung and played in New Mexico for generations. Directions are given in both Spanish and English, frequently including music. The games are divided into three age groups covering children from five years old to the early teens." Baltimore
